EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

SECRETARY BLAINE, Justice Swayne, and Justice Bradley have sons in the Civil Service. Secretary Hunt has four sons in the service of their country.

OWING to the early hour the REPUBLICAN is compelled to go to press it is unable to give the result of yesterday's election, but in the next issue it will furnish a complete report.

THERE is this to be said of the Virginia duel as a means of removing a dangerous political opponent, it is less cowardly than shooting him in the back from an ambuscade, as the Mississippi Bourbons do.

IF the Mississippi Bourbons shoot all the members of the opposition ticket they will then have no trouble in electing their own. The Northern Democrat can be depended on to rejoice over a victory of that kind.

ROBERT G. INGERSOLL weaves in his lectures many fine thoughts and beautifully expressed sentences In most instances, however, they are the production of other minds, and he re-sets the gems in order to polish and magnify his own thoughts that otherwise would appear dull and lifeless.

THE great Brooklyn bridge that has already cost sixteen millions, is not finished by any means, although the public expected it would be in use before this. A thousand more tons of steel are required to be put in place before the structure will be considered safe to bear the enormous pressure that will test its weight. The impression is prevalent among the taxpayers of the two cities that a vast sum of money has been paid that contractors have appropriated to their own use. This will unearth a swindle of Tweed proportions, in the opinion of many.

COUNT ANDRASSY, curly whiskered and bejeweled, is again at the head of the Austrian Foreign Office. It is just two years since the handsome Hungarian gave up to Baron Haymerle the portfolio which he had held for nine years. To Andrassy is due the master stroke of the Austrian occupation of Novi Bazar, thus checking Russia's advances. Changes in Austrian politics mean little as a rule. Andrassy resigned in 1879 in a sort of pet with the Hungarian Liberals. He is a Liberal himself so far as that goes, but Liberalism and Conservatism in Austria mean practically the same thing, and both are combined in a bureaucracy which in power and permanence is not inferior to that of Russia.

IF Chicago newspapers do not exaggerate, Chicago milkmen are the Borgias of the period. It is only now and then that a drug clerk or a doctor inadvertently poisons his patient; the Chicago milkmen drug the whole community all the time. They are not content to employ lake water, or draw copiously upon the cow with the iron tail. They seek to impart consistency to their attenuated milk by vicarious methods, so as to be able to say, with Squeers, 'there's richness for you.' They chalk up their milk even more regularly than they chalk down their scores, adding glucose, cocoa bean, chromate of lead, etc., to give color, body and flavor. None of this sort of milkmen reside in Bellefonte, of course. Still, we are inclined to agree with the Chicago press that effectual means should be taken to prevent the adulteration of food, and that 'every city and town should have a laboratory, and science should be called in to aid in suppressing this enormous evil.'

The Past and Future of the U. S. Treasury.

The Secretaryship of the U. S. Treasury is now filled and it is well at this time to devote some attention to it. Quite appropriately it is regarded as one of the most important positions in the cabinet, and no other attracts to its occupant more public notice. From a careful and accurate authority we quote as follows in regard to the past, present and future of the U. S. Treasury: If any reliance may be placed in the published statements respecting the condition of the National Treasury Department at Washington, it seems very likely that President Arthur's administration may inherit from the preceding one some very important lines of action which, although clearly defined prior to the retirement of Secretary Windom, had not been actually entered upon. The first and most obvious of these lines appears to be a sort of general retrenchment of expenditures. In the published reports this is made to assume the aspect of civil service reform whereas in reality it strongly resembles the vigorous policy of economy adopted by the Postmaster General against the abuses of the Star mail route system. It is understood that an exactly similar condition of things is charged to exist in the Bureaucratic administration of the Treasury Department. A report on the subject appears to have been prepared during Mr. Windom's administration, and was called for at a session of the Senate by a resolution that was adopted on a motion of Senator Sherman.

It is apparent that during the brief administration of Mr. Windon he must have been entirely too much occupied by the exciting events of the period to have been able to make any serious investigation of the actual condition of the department. But, so far as we can make out, his predecessor seems to have been painfully conscious of the abuses, but destitute of power to reform them. Now if these statements be well founded, as there is good reason to believe they are, President Arthur's administration encounters at the very outset a prodigious task, in being forced to accept and undertake vigorous retrenchment in a department so colossal in its organization as that of the National Treasury. Still we do not see that either the President or the new Secretary can have any choice in the matter, or that they have anything to lose by unloading the government of the gross abuses referred to, and which preceding Secretaries have not had the time nor opportunity to get rid of. The brilliant success of the Postmaster General in his work of reform stands to the credit of the Garfield Administration, although all the information upon which his action was based was collected and embodied by the Hayes administration. During the eight years' Administration of President Grant, he seems to have been fully aware of the condition of things in the Treasury Department, and to have endeavored to force some sort of reform by repeated changes of the Secretary and still more sudden and summary changes of the heads of bureaus. But the abuses were too deep seated to be reached in that way. The Hayes Administration was kept during the whole four years of its career so much on the defensive, and had so much very important work to do in the finances of the nation, that it was unable to accomplish anything more toward retrenchment than to expose abuses and to pave the way for future reform. It must appear apparent that although the financia policy of the government is fixed and permanent, we are now on the eve of some radical reformatory regime in the machinery and operation of the Treasury Department, the success of which will properly belong to the administration of President Arthur.

Despair and postponement are cowardice and defeat. Men were born to succeed, not to fail.

Belgium's African Explorations.

The Dark Continent has been one of the great mysteries which modern civilization has almost in vain endeavored to solve. Much has been learned, but much is yet mysterious. Our country has contributed to a large degree in prosecuting researches, but Belgium is now taking the lead of all the countries of the world. Her extraordinary enterprise in this direction results from the active interest shown by King Leopold, who is the President of the general European society formed to carry forward the work of opening the Dark Continent to scientific research and commercial enterprise. This society has branches in England, France, Germany, Italy, Belgium and Austria, which contribute to its funds, besides prosecuting more or less of African research on their own separate accounts. Last year Belgium kept an expedition in the field in the region west of Lakes Nyassa and Tanganika. Next season she will have four parties at work upon a joint plan, which is much the most comprehensive yet undertaken. It contemplates nothing less than the meeting in the heart of the continent of the expeditions coming from the north, south, east and west.

The four Belgian parties organized for this great project are now preparing to start from Brussels. The first, under Colonel Wouvermanns, will go to the east coast, and, striking westward from Dar-es-Salam, a port near Zanzibar, will proceed to Lake Tangarika, passing over unexplored ground for a portion of the distance. After mapping the southwestern shore of the lake, they will cross the hill country to Lake Moero Okata and ascertain whether the river Lualabo flows into that body of water. Then they will go northward to Nyangue, the point of meeting for all the four expeditions. The second party, under Professor Dusief, will leave Capstadt on the east coast and follow in the footsteps of Livingston up the river Zambesi as far as Lethosi, where they will turn northward, in order to reach Lake Banguelo, the least known of the great African lakes, which it is their chief purpose to explore. They expect to overtake Colonel Wouvermanns' party in Casembe and go on to Nyague with them.

The third party, commanded by Colonel Strauch, is to meet Stanley on the Congo and aid him in the exploration of that stream. They take with them a fleet of small steamboats which can be transported in sections and carried around the falls and rapids of the lower river for service above. Mr. Stanley has collected a force of 1,000 natives at Vivi for the portage of these boats. From the head of the possible navigation on the Upper Congo, wherever that point may be, Colonel Strauch's party will make their way to Nyangue. The fourth expedition, under Emil Banning and Captain Theis, starts from Khartoum, at the junction of the White and Blue Niles, and ascending the White Nile to the Albert Nyanza will explore the western shore of that lake, and passing through the Urregga country will join the other expeditions at Nyangue. After the four parties meet, the probability is that they will seek the east coast of Zanzibar, though the route of the homeward bound journey is not yet determined. It will be at least two years before we can expect to hear the results of this splendid scheme of systematic and extensive exploration.

THE attempt to create a new State out of the whole or a part of the Territory of Dakota is to be renewed at the approaching session of Congress, with greater vigor than ever before. The proposed State can show a considerably larger population than several of the newer States had at the time of their admission, and has other strong claims to a place in the great family of the Union. A Washington dispatch gives an interesting resume of the facts upon which the claim will be pushed.

Do Examiners Examine?

This question is rendered appropriate by the recent collapse of the Newark, N. J., bank. An exchange calls attention to the fact that the Federal Government practically goes bail for the national banking system. The notes of the banks are secured by Federal bonds; the solvency of the bank is attested by Government reports and tested by Federal examinations. The stockholders and, in the end, all who do business with the banks pay for this examination, and since the shareholders number a quarter of a million, scattered over the world, no way can be devised for the protection of their interest and the inspection of their agents, the bank officers, but a corps of Government Examiners. The great army of depositors protects itself and is protected by the liability of shareholders; the Government assumes to protect the shareholders.

This protection should be efficient. It is not. Bank examiners do not examine. On the face of the case, Bank examiner Shelly had enough before him a year ago to justify going to the Newark bank which has just collapsed. Cashier Baldwin claimed to have a deposit of $2,000,000 in the Mechanics' National bank of New York. One of two things—this was bad banking for the Newark or the New York bank. Neither had the resourses, on the one hand, to have a single deposit like this lying at a low rate, or, on the other, to be paying interest. When Shelly received the letter, now found to be a forgery, from the New York bank acknowledging the deposit at interest, that bank should have been examined. Yet again, the discounts given the Nugents, begun in 1873, were entered or not. If they were, it was for a larger sum than the bank could legally advance. If not entered this yawning gap in the daily transactions of the bank ought to have been discovered by the Examiner. Still more, Baldwin's defalcation would be a secret to-day if he could have borrowed the securities to meet the coming examination, which Bank Examiner Shelly had delayed for some days to oblige the cashier's convenience. For a Bank Examiner to delay his investigation at a bank officer's request ought to discharge the Bank Examiner, and yet every one who knows bank habits knows that such delays are not unusual. Bank Examiner's visits are constantly known in advance. Such examinations cannot be worth much; they deceive; they do not protect.

The whole system needs change. Instead of genial men traveling around the country at the expense of the shareholders and on easy good terms with bank officers, the system of national bank examination should be reorganized so as to make it in fact what it is in theory, protective, and this can only be done by making it detective, putting sharp men on, and when a bank is gutted under the Examiner's eyes let the Government deal with him as a private employer would—drop him.

AN Italian has gone into the prophecy business. His plan is a tremendous one. It is published in the ill-starred Aurora of Rome, which was founded at the beginning of last year as the Pope's personal organ. According to Leonardo Aretino, the name of the Prophet, the world will begin to come to an end on the 15th of this month. His prophecy reads like a fireworks programme. On the day named the sea will overflow the coasts. Second day: The low lands will be submerged. Third day: All fresh-water fish will die. Fourth day: All saltwater creatures will perish. Fifth day: All the birds will expire. Sixth day: All the houses in the world will tumble down. Seventh day: All the rocks burst asunder. Eighth day: General earthquake. Ninth day: The mountains will collapse. Tenth day: All human beings struck dumb. Eleventh day: Graves will yawn. Twelfth day: A shower of stars. Thirteenth day: Demise of the entire human race. Fourteenth day: Heaven and earth will be consumed by fire. Fifteenth day: Universal resurrection and last judgment. As facetious advertisers say, 'Cut this out and paste it in your hat.'

Judge Folger in the Treasury.

President Arthur has been very fortunate thus far in his cabinet appointments, and in none more so than in his recent appointment of Judge Folger, of New York, to succeed William Windom. An exchange remarks that the Treasury is admirably filled in the appointment of Judge Folger. The better he becomes known to the country the more heartily it will be commended. For ten years he has been shelved on the bench. Had he been in active political life, the men who would have outshone him could be counted on the fingers of a single hand. Without the special business training of Governor Morgan, he is a man of far greater intellectual force, range and accomplishments.

In mental calibre and organization a statesman of broad gauge; in politics a positive Republican without being a factionist; in personal character pure and blameless, he combines almost all elements of worth and strength. Before going on the bench he sat in the State Senate, and is by all odds the ablest man who has served in the New York Legislature during the last quarter of a century. He has remarkable parliamentary talents, and if he were in the United States Senate would rank with its foremost men. As a Judge his opinions have been strong, luminous and sound. He has had little experience in administrative place, but his rare capacity and aptitude will easily master its requirements.

Judge Folger is nobody else's man, but a positive, sinewy statesman of robust individuality and splendid ability. He is not in the Treasury as a stop gap; not there as a makeshift; not there as the representative of anybody but the President himself. He stands not for any faction, but for the whole party, and he will make himself felt for the general good.

MR. JAMES is credited with an intention to improve the railroad mail service by increasing its expedition. If this report is not correct, it is at least well formed, as there is certainly room for such improvement. In England the speed of the limited mail is greater than that of any other train, and so it should be here. The only reason why the fact is otherwise is that the government has not hitherto been willing to pay for the best service to be had for money. Our readers may remember that as long ago as 1875 a fast mail train was put on the Pennsylvania by which postal communication with the west was materially quickened, to the great satisfaction of the public. But it was subsequently taken off because the available appropriation was deemed insufficient to bear the expense. By all means let us have fast mail trains as quickly as possible.

REV. DEWITT TALMAGE, who is nothing unless he is eccentric or extravagant, discussed the claims of those representing the editorial departments of the newspaper press in a recent discourse. While he advanced some original thoughts, of real merit and usefulness, he also exceeded the boundary of reason when he said an editor must be a statesman, an essayist, a geographer, a statistician and a man of encyclopædic information, all combined. An editor should have a general knowledge of history and current events, with a practical comprehension of the field as mapped out from day to day, enabling him to grasp from different sources the means necessary to enable his paper to reflect a mirror of the times. It is this power of concentration that causes some to far excel others as managing editors.

Senator VanWyck's two sons—his only children—both died of diphtheria last week. Mrs. VanWyck left the bedside of her sick father, the Hon. John Brodhead, to go to her dying children, and before she could return to him he also died.

MR. SCOVILLE, Guiteau's counsel, remarks an exchange, has, so far changed his mind regarding the defense to be made in behalf of the accused as to discard both questions of malpractice and jurisdiction. Mr. Scoville believes his client to be insane, and in his ability to prove him so All that is known of Guiteau certainly indicates that he is a man of weak mind; but nothing has been proved to the effect that he is a man of intellect so weak as to be irresponsible for his acts. If, however, his counsel can establish his insanity to that extent, the verdict must and will be in accordance with the evidence; but the defense of insanity is generally resorted to in order to enable juries to give full play to their sympathies for criminals in whose punishment they want to have no part. When the test is applied few men are willing to join in a verdict which carries with it the extreme penalty of death, and it is the knowledge of that weakness of human nature which induces shrewd counsel of murderers to set up the plea of insanity. But the plea is a good one when the fact of irresponsible insanity can be well established and it should receive the same respect from judges and jurors as any other plea, until it is found that it cannot be established beyond doubt or question. Guiteau's crime was more than an ordinary one, for it was against the peace and dignity of the country, as well as against the life of an individual; but when the assassin comes to his trial he will be entitled to all the protection that justice provides for the safety of the innocent, and it is not questioned that he will get all the rights and privileges that any other accused person would receive; but if his counsel expect to effect his acquittal upon the ground of insanity, they must make their proof so strong and clear as to be unchallenged by all men, for no sentimental sympathy is likely to go into the jury box to work the freedom of the assassin of so good a man as James A. Garfield.

IS CAPITAL punishment a restraint in preventing murder? The question is becoming of increased interest daily, for notwithstanding the swift and stern infliction of the death-penalty for murder, the crime is in no way abated, for there are more men charged with murder, and held for trial and now under sentence to be hung, convicted of the crime, in Pennsylvania, at this time, than there were last year, or for any year for the past thirty. Hanging has become common and murder is in no way decreased. There are two men awaiting sentence of death in the Dauphin county jail, and one awaiting trial on a charge of murder. In Lancaster county there are at least double that number. Murder, according to this, is not abated by hanging men. But what will stop the horrible crime? This question must be discussed when the suggestion of the abolition of capital punishment is considered.

THE importation of garden and farm products from Europe is one of the novelties of the season, resulting in good part from the drought. Supplementing the arrival of a cargo of German cabbages at Baltimore, it may be stated that a firm in New York city have now on the way a cargo of white beans. The home crop, west and south, this season has been a comparative failure, and as speculators have, for some time past, had complete control of the market, it is probable that this foreign importation, with others to follow, will have the effect of 'breaking the bean market.'

Senator Hoar read at the recent meeting of the American Antiquarian Society an entertaining paper on President Garfield's valiant New England ancestors. The facts were compiled last summer for presentation to Garfield during his intended visit to New England. Senator Hoar said that it was while examining the early records at the town hall of Westminster that he first heard of the assault upon the President.

Poetry.

The English Language.

A pretty deer is dear to me,
A hare with downy hair;
I love a hart with all my heart,
But barely bear a bear.
'Tis plain that no one takes a plain
To have a pair of pears;
A rake, though, often takes a rake
To tear away the tares.
All rays raise thyme, time razes all;
And through the whole hole wears,
A writ in writing "right" may write
It wright and still be wrong—
For "wright and "rite" are neither right
And don't to write belong.
Beer often brings a bier to man,
Coughing a coffin brings,
And too much ale will make us all
As well as other things.
The person lies who says he lies
When he is but reclining,
And when consumptive folks decline,
They all decline declining.
A quail don't quail before a storm—
A bough will bow before it;
We cannot rein the rain at all—
No earthly powers reign over it.
The dyer dyes awhile, then dies.
To dye he's always trying,
Until upon his dying bed
He thinks no more of dyeing.
A son of Mars mars many a sun;
All Deys must have their days,
And every knight should pray each night
To him who weighs his ways.
'Tis meet that man should mete out meat
To feed misfortune's son;
The fair should fare on love alone,
Else one can not be won.
Alas, alas! is something false;
Of faults a maid is made;
Her waist is but a barren waste—
Though sfayed, she is not staid.
The springs spring forth in spring and shoots
Shoot forward, one and all;
Though summer kills the flowers it leaves
The leaves to fall in fall.
I would a story here commence,
But you might find it stale;
So let's suppose that we have reached
The tail end of our tale.

Our Story Teller.

The Story of a Mortar-bed.

I see a great many things from my window. It overlooks a very quiet street, but ever since I have been kept from going about by this wretched sprain in my ankle I have found much to interest me in the street in front. Ever since they began the building just across the way I have been absorbed in watching its progress to the neglect of my needle work, and even the new books which Tom brought me to read. I have taken such delight in the laying of the brick wall, of seeing it grow day by day till it reached its height and was crowned by a cornice. It suggested to me many ideas about life which perhaps would be laughed at as the fancies of an old woman.

I have been anxious from the first that the house should be a success, for Tom Neale was the architect, and Tom is my favorite nephew and the finest fellow that ever cheered a lonely old woman. His father has been so skeptical about Tom's success as an architect that he hesitated about using his plans for the new row he was to build; but he finally decided to give the boy a chance, and, in my opinion, the result is satisfactory. One of the houses is Tom's, and he goes over it with great interest every morning just before paying me his daily visit. Tom is a thoughtful boy and doesn't neglect me.

One day, when they began the plastering, I watched the men all day as they worked. Some were sifting the sand which was dumped there by some little carts that were backed up and unjointed and then driven away for another load. The lime had seethed and bubbled in a long white box, spattering far over the sides, and after this was all over they lifted the little gate in the end of the box and the white stream ran into a bed of clean, cool sand; then the men took their shovels and covered this soft little lake with a thick layer of sand till it might have passed itself off for a solid bank of the real article, and, the day's work being done, the men took their dinner pails and went home.

By the time I had finished my tea and taken my seat at the window again it was quite dark, though I could still see the figures of the passers by in the dim light. My attention was suddenly attracted by the figure of a woman on the other side of the street. She was in evident haste. The walk was entirely blocked by the building materials, and as the streets were covered with mud I watched her with idle curiosity to see what she would do. She hesitated for a moment, and then placed one foot cautiously on one of the sand banks that flanked that treacherous bed, and finding it firm hurried forward. A few steps and she slipped and went down in the slimy mass. As she fell her arm struck against the board on which a lantern was hung. Its light gave me a glimpse of her face. It was haggard, but still young. She caught the board as she struck it, and regained her footing. I threw up my window, calling at the same time to Jane to go to the girl's assistance; but, seeing that she was observed, the stranger plunged into the muddy road and was soon lost in the darkness.

The next morning when Tom came in I saw that he was quite excited, and without waiting for any greeting he at once showed me a bracelet he had just found. Where did I suppose he found it? In the mortar. After the hod-carriers had emptied their hods he himself happening to be there saw something shining, and fished this bracelet out of the mass. I examined it curiously. It was an odd pattern. Two heavy wires of unpolished gold, twisted together, the ends bent into a hook-and-eye and on the inside a small letter L was engraved.

It did not occur to me at first to connect this bracelet with the little incident of the night before, but in a few moments it flashed upon me, and with strange perversity I did not mention it to Tom. He was already inclined to weave some romance about the affair, and I was not going to give him material for any such nonsense; so I advised him to advertise it. He finally consented, though I could see that he had some wild idea of finding the owner without such aid. A week's advertising brought no response, and at the end of that time Tom took me down to the nearest point on the coast to get a breath of sea air. We had not been there twenty-four hours when he rushed into my room, shouting rather ambiguously, 'I have seen her: I have seen her.'

'Seen whom?' I demanded, seeing his excitement.

'The owner of the bracelet. She was sitting on the porch crocheting, and on her arm was the exact mate to the one I found. She was talking with the Gilberts, and I strolled up to Harry and he at once introduced me. Her name is Carey. Did you ever hear of them? Gilbert says they don't live far from us.'

'I do not believe that it belongs to her,' I answered, impatiently, for I was tired of Tom's conjectures about the little owner of that bracelet. I had heard little else for a week.

'If you are sure it is hers, why don't you go and restore it to her?

Tom was hurt at my lack of interest and went down to look at the register to find if her initials agreed with those on the bracelet. He returned somewhat crestfallen. The names were registered, 'Mrs. John Carey,' 'Miss Helen H. Carey.' Though he was puzzled he was not convinced.

Now I am an old woman, and ought to be past any romantic follies, but I determined to hobble out on the porch and see this young woman for myself. In view of what occurred the night before the bracelet was found, I felt confident of being able to tell at a glance if Miss Helen H. Carey was the young woman who had fallen into Tom's mortar bed about two weeks before, and then lost the article which had caused Tom so much speculation; so I told him that I would like to see her. The following afternoon I went out, supported by his strong arm. The young lady and her mother were there, sitting a little apart from the others, and I saw at once that she was very pretty, with eyes and hair of the same shade of hazel and a fresh pink color in her face; but I also saw at once that she was not the girl that had fallen into the mortar, and consequently the bracelet was not hers, although its undeniable counterpart was on her arm. My curiosity was not quite satisfied when I turned away; and after that day I made many visits to the porch when everything was so bright and pleasant, and I noticed that a sadness hung over the Careys—a gloom that they did not seem able to dispel. They were unnaturally quiet, especially Helen, and I longed to see her enjoying herself with the other young folks; but she seldom left her mother's side, and they both seemed oppressed by some sorrow. Now and then Helen chatted with Tom and once or twice had gone down to the beach with him when I was talking with her mother. During one of the strolls Tom had spoken in a careless way of the odd bracelet she wore. 'It is something quite out of the usual line,' he had said, and she had explained that it was one of a pair that was made from gold that her brother now dead had brought from the mines.

'Have you lost the other?' Tom had blurted out in his eagerness, and she had flushed and trembled and had asked him to take her to the house and had made him no answer at all. I was much perplexed when Tam told me this and I feared that this girl was involved in some painful mystery, and as I was afraid Tom was getting too much interested in the girl, I told him that he ought to show her the bracelet and ask her if it was hers. He assented, but did not like to ask her before her mother or all those people on the porch; so I, like a deceitful old woman, agreed to entice her into my room. She had several times stopped and chatted with me, and the next afternoon as she passed my door I called to her to come in. She was not unwilling, and after a few moments Tom Neale came whistling along the hall and stopped at my door.

'Why! Didn't you go sailing?' I asked, deceitfully.

'Too calm,' answered Tom, as he lounged in and closed the door.

The way in which the two conspirators managed to bring about a discussion of jewelry was really diplomatic.

'Will you let Aunt Marcy see that bracelet you wear? It is such a curious one,' said Tom to Helen Carey.

'Why!' I exclaimed in fraudulent surprise. 'It is exactly like the one you found, Tom, let me see it.'

He took the trinket from his pocket, and then I looked at Helen Carey. She had grown white to her lips, and when she saw the bracelet in Tom's hand, she gave a wild scream and fell down on the floor.

Well, I hope this excitement is about over. Here I am in my bed again, with a good prospect of staying a month or more, and my nerves all unstrung. It serves me right for trying to humor anything so foolish as Tom's whim about the wretched bracelet. The last thing I remember when my ankle turned again was that Tom was bending over Helen Carey, calling her every endearing term that his silly brain could invent, while his poor old aunt, unnoticed and uncared for, was fainting from pain. I would never have believed it of Tom, and I told him so when he came in to explain it all to me.

It seems that it wasn't Helen's bracelet after all, but belonged to her sister, who has been insane ever since last winter, when her lover was drowned, and who escaped from the asylumn over a month ago and had not been traced. She had worn this bracelet at the time of her escape and was without doubt the young woman whom I saw deliberately walk into the mortar bed. I thought she was crazy at the time. I told Tom all about it this morning, and that I knew all the time that the bracelet wasn't Helen's, and he left me to cool off his indignation. They have since been in my room asking me so many questions about the girl (which way she went and how she looks), that I am nearly crazy myself. Tom has been sending telegrams to Mrs. Carey's husband all the morning, and you would think he was one of the family.

* * * * * *

I thought I should never take up this subject again, but I must express my surprise. Tom and Helen Carey are actually engaged. They found her sister through the finding of the bracelet, they said. Much help that would have been lost if I hadn't been sitting at this very window to see the whole thing. I was the only person who was able to furnish any facts.

The Persecution of the Jews.

The Jews have been from all time an exclusive people; pride of race and contempt of the Gentiles round about them distinguished them already in the days when they warred against the Amalekites. They sincerely and truly believed that it was not pleasing to Him that His children should act like the peoples found about them. Eighteen centuries of cruel, senseless persecutions, of enforced exclusion from intermixture with other nations, of inter-marriage in small communities, have intensified all the distinctive physical and mental features of the Jews, so that not only their good but their bad qualities have become accentuated. Not even the eighteenth century, so ready to boast on its enlightenment, had opened the gates of the Ghetto and accorded civil liberties to a people who, of all peoples, are peace-loving, law-abiding and least likely to abuse these privileges. The gates have now been thrown down, the liberties freely granted, and it is difficult to foretell what the Jew will be a few centuries hence—indeed, if there will be Jews left at all. They are far too assimilative, far too keen-sighted, not to be affected by and to recognize the propriety inherent in the cosmopolitan tendencies of the present day. For ourselves, we have no faith in the schemes of enthusiasts portrayed by Daniel Deronda and his friend Mordecai, in the national restoration of the Jewish people, and feel convinced that, were the attempt made, it would result in a mere exodus of the scum of the population. What has distinguished the Jewish people and kept them a nation so long is the fact that their nationality is not rooted in the land from which they have so long been absent, but in the law, which they can bear about with them everywhere. The Jews are at present in a transitional state. It is commonly said it takes three generations to make a gentleman. It must certainly take as long to obliterate all the cruel memories of Christian oppression that linger among those whose grandfathers remember the pressure of disabling laws.—Exchange.

Dinner in France.

Dinner in France is supposed to be the great event of the day. So it is, but not because it is a feeding operation. On the contrary, this French meal is a domestic symposium, in which head and heart take precedence of the stomach. The interest and value of a meal in France depend more on the social than on the culinary element. Old Izaac Walton's dictum that the company makes the feast, and not the food, is of special significance in France. One rarely sees a Frenchman dining alone, not for the reason that he wants some one to look at or to drink with, but because he wants some one to talk to. Conversation, accordingly, renders the French table unique. I am inclined to think the modern French dinner table is the substitute for the old salon to which the "feast of reason and the flow of soul" used to be wholly confined. In any event, the chief attraction of the French table nowadays is conversation.

A writer in a West Virginia paper says that the Shenandoah Valley, when first settled, 169 years ago, was an open prairie like region, covered with tall grass, on which herds of deer, buffalo and elk feed, and devoid of timber except on occasional ridges; but that after it became settled trees sprang up almost as thickly and regularly as if seed had been planted. These forests, having been preserved by the farmers, cover now a large part of the surface of the valley with hard wood trees of superior excellence. The explanation of this change is that previous to settlement of the valley annual fires, negligently started by Indians, burned the young trees, and prevented the formation of forest, but with the arrival of settlers these fires were prevented; and the opinion is asserted that the treeless character of the Western prairies is owing to the Indian practice of annually burning the grass. Were it not for that dense forests would have covered these vast plains for centuries.

The patient plodder will often leave the brilliant genius far in the rear; just as tact oft surmounts what appals the most brilliant ability.

Johnnie and the Gopher.

The common gopher is a fine little fellow. He is full of mischief, and steals the farmer's corn. Some of these pests are destroyed by the hen-hawk, which is fond of gopher meat. The smart boys of the West catch many of them.

This is the way that Johnnie caught one a short time ago. He saw an active young one on the prairie, and was ready for a chase. He ran and so did the gopher, which was in a hurry to get home. Johnnie gained on him and was near him, when the gopher stopped. He turned around, sat up straight, folded his paws as a boy does his arms, and looked at Johnnie. He seemed to say, as well as he could, "now my boy, I am ready for you, if you choose to risk my teeth."

Just as Johnnie stopped to take his prize by the nape of the neck, Gopher was missing. He had stopped just on the edge of his hole. He went down to see about his dinner or because he felt like doing so.

Johnnie knew he would come up again to see how he liked being fooled in that way. He was soon ready to receive him. He made a slip-noose with a string, placed it over the hole, and waited.

Gopher soon peeped slyly out, and looked around to see the boy who liked to chase a gopher. But before he knew of the trick, Johnnie pulled the string. Gopher was caught, and was dangling at the end of it. It was Johnnie's turn then to laugh at him for his folly in coming out of his house.

When Johnnie had no string in his pocket, he filled Gopher's house with water by pouring it in at the hole door. Then the gopher ran out in great haste to see where all of the rain came from. His eyes blinked, and his hair was as smooth as if it had been just brushed. He found Johnnie waiting for him, and ready to carry him home to that naughty pup. Gopher must not think Johnnie a foolish boy, or be too sure he is safe in his burrow.—Dr. J. H. Hanaford in Our Little Ones.

When to Use Gestures.

A writer in the Golden Rule rebukes the tendency to a gushing and over-fine style in literature as well as in oratory, and emphasizes a useful hint as follows:

A young lady in France, placed under the tutorship of (we think) Madame Clarion, was constantly offending her teacher by excessive action with her arms. She was in the habit of flinging them about in a supererogatory way, which tore passion to tatters, "in Erles vein." After many admonitions, the lady resolved to tie her pupil's hands to her sides with a piece of string.

"Now," said the girl, "I can't move them at all!"

"Go on with your part," kindly replied the other, smiling.

And go on she did, with elocution all the better for action the less. At last, on reaching the climax of her part, her excitement nerved her little wrists, she burst the strings, and, as your chairwoman would phrase it, she 'gesticulated' with great vehemence. When it was over, she apologized, with tears in her eyes, saying she "really could not help it." To her surprise, her instructress praised her action this time.

"That, mon enfant, is what we want. Reserve your vehement displays of feeling till you cannot help making them, and they will be both appropriate and successful."

Surely the lesson is a large one. Quiet energy, with readiness to strike the iron when (but not before) it is hot, is the secret of success in most undertakings.

On the Cow-Catcher.

In a railroad car the seats were all full except one, which was occupied by a pleasant-looking Irishman, and at one of the stations a couple of evidently well-bred and intelligent young ladies came in to procure seats. Seeing none vacant, they were about to go to the next car when Patrick arose hastily and offered them his seat with evident pleasure.

'But you will have no seat for yourself,' responded one of the young ladies with a smile, hesitating, with true politeness, to accept it.

'Niver mind that,' said the gallant Hibernian; I'd ride upon a cow-catcher to New York any time for a smile from such jintlemanly ladies?'

And he retired hastily into the next car amid the cheers of his fellow passengers.

'We gain by other's failures,' said the lecturer. And the little man in the snuff-colored suit, who sat in the back row, rose right up to remark: 'Perhaps you do, but blamed if I gain anything by 'em. No less than a dozen's failed this week, and they stuck me bad, every one.' As the policeman carried him out, he was heard to remark about being allowed to pick a fellow up when he was lying that way.

Spoony dry goods clerk to smart miss trying on a hat before the glass—"Don't I wish I was a looking glass." Smart miss—"Yes, perhaps you'd get more girls to look at you then." Clerk collapses, and is carried out.

All men must admire frank, open honesty of purpose, though few are ready to seek to possess it themselves.

THE farmer should take his home paper first, last and all the time,

A Mysterious Grotto.

A Marseilles paper, under the heading 'A Mysterious Grotto,' relates the following story: Several sportsmen in pursuit of game in Formentera, one of the Baleario Island, suddenly came upon a deep excavation, the entrance to which was covered by bushes and undergrowth. They proceeded to explore it, and having with some difficulty removed several large stones found themselves in a well-built chamber of Moorish design, the walls of which were ornamented with undecipherable characters. In the middle of the chamber were two tombs of admirable workmanship. On removing the metal covers by which they were closed the explorers discovered two colossal mummified bodies, one on the right being that of a young woman, the other that of a man. On the head of the woman was a diadem set with stones which, if genuine, are of inestimable value. Around her neck was a necklace of large pearls, two enormous ear-rings were attached to her ears, and her fingers were covered with rings. On the head of the man was an imperial crown, and in his hand he held a sceptre. Six of the discoverers remained to guard the treasure and the others left for Madrid to consult the authorities. The inhabitants are said to have known of the cavern, but had never entered it, thinking it was only a resort for serpents.

A Tremendous Iceberg.

A St. Johns, N. F., dispatch of the 25th inst. says, The vanguard iceberg of the huge Arctic armade now sailing southward along the coasts of Labrador and Newfoundland made its appearance this morning off the harbor of St. Johns. It is one of twenty-three huge masses of glacial drift ice reported during the past twenty days as slowly but surely deploying downward across the track of European and American commerce, and ranging in their long drawn line at present between the parallels of 52 and 47 50 degrees north. The berg now in sight from the harbor of St. Johns is about fourteen miles distant, bearing south east. It is of enormous dimensions, being not less than a quarter of a mile in length, and soaring through one of its turrets to an altitude of 300 feet. There is a vast plateau rising not more than a few feet from the surface of the sea, extending about two hundred feet from its southern side. Its mean drift rate to-day with a head wind from the southward is approximately two and three quarters of a mile per hour. Navigators between America and Europe will soon require to keep a vigilant outlook for this formidable invader of the domain of commerce.

Astronomy is a beautiful science. We are told that if a railway was run from the earth to the nearest fixed star, and the fare was 1 penny for every 100 miles, and if you took a mass of gold to the ticket office equal to the national debt—$3,800,000,000—it would not be sufficient to pay for a ticket to the nearest fixed star aforesaid. If this be the case it matters very little to us whether such a railroad is ever constructed. It would be mighty discouraging to go the ticket office with a mass of gold equal to $3,800,000,000 and be informed that the fare was $5,679,032,000. If the ticket agent wouldn't trust until we got back we'd be compelled to forego the trip.

An Old Couple Found Dead.

BELLOWS FALLS, VT., Nov 2.—Ezar P. Cook and wife, an old couple, were found dead in their house this afternoon. No evidence of violence was found upon the man. On the woman's head there was a cut three inches long, but the skull was not fractured. Death was probably caused by concussion of the brain. Mrs. Cook often intimated she was of unsound mind, and in the bedroom was found an undated letter saying she was crazy and if she should at any time be found dead she wished her son to be good to his father. The general theory is the woman administered poison to her husband and then inflicted the blow upon herself.

The regular fall change of time on the Pennsylvania railroad took place on Monday.

Ingersoll's Libel Suit.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Colonel Robt. G. Ingersoll will, he says, bring a suit for libel against the Philadelphia Inquirer, placing his damages at a large sum. The foundation of this suit is rather funny. It appears that Colonel Ingersoll made a speech to the jury in the celebrated whisky cases in Chicago, in which he made an eloquent and touching allusion to the evils of strong drink. That portion of his speech was stolen by a temperance orator and incorporated in his own. The lecture was printed somewhere and Ingersoll was charged by the Philadelphia paper with having stolen a portion of it, and, besides calling the pagan a thief, applied other disagreeable and libelous epithets, for which the Colonel seeks reparation.

Milwaukee Cigarmakers on a Strike.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 3.—The cigarmakers of this city, working in nearly 200 shops, and numbering 900 men, struck to-day for an advance in piecework averaging one dollar per thousand cigars made. At the close of business to-night forty-two of the factories had acceded to the demand. The largest establishment, however—Oscherman & Co.—has not yet yielded. The union here claims to have $70,000 in its treasury. The men are acting in a very orderly manner, and say they will conduct the strike on business principles. They expect their lead to be followed by the cigarmakers all over the country, and claim that they can hold out indefinitely.

Farm and Iron Ore Mine
AT
ORPHANS COURT SALE

WILL be exposed at public sale on the premises, by order of the Orphans' Court of Centre county, Pa., on Wednesday, Nov. 16th, 1881,

All that messuage or tract of land known as the

JAS. A. McCALMONT FARM

Located in Marion township, Centre county, Pa., about a mile west of Jacksonville and eight miles east of Bellefonte, a first class Nittany Valley Farm, bounded by lands of W. W. Beck, Joseph Long, heirs of John Beatty, and heirs of Thomas Huston, deceased, containing about 193 acres net measure. 150 acres are cleared and in a high state of cultivation, and the balance of the land is covered with thriving timber.

A good Mansion House, two tenement houses, frame barn, with other outbuildings; wells and cisterns convenient.

This farm contains the celebrated Iron Ore Bank known as the McCalmont Ore, which is of the best quality, analyzing 56 per cent. carbonate of iron, and extensive in quantity in addition to which there are indications of ore of same quality in the fields adjoining, which can be washed from the earth in large quantities. Water 90 feet below the surface.

This farm is located in a good neighborhood, convenient to churches, schools, mills, and within three miles of Howard station on the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad, to which the road descends all the way.

Persons wishing to view this property before the day of sale are invited to call on James S. and Robert McCalmont, who reside on the premises.

Sale at 1 o'clock P. M. of said day.

TERMS.—One-third of purchase money to be paid on confirmation of sale, one-third in one year, the balance in two years thereafter; the two latter payments to be secured by bonds and mortgage on the premises, with interest.

Valuable Farm for Sale.

THE EXECUTORS OF THE ESTATE OF FELIX DALE, deceased, offer at private sale a Farm situate at seven miles southwest from Bellefonte, containing 162 Acres, more or less, of the very best limestone land, about 30 acres of which remain covered with good timber, mostly of white oak.

Houserville, in College Twp,

The improvements are a two-story Dwelling House, roomy and commodious with cellar and vault, basement kitchen and pantry: well and cistern near the door; oven-house, smoke-house and tool-house; a large Bank Barn, with horse-power shed attached; carriage house, corn crib, and other necessary buildings.

Besides an Orchard of choice apples, there are cherries, peaches, grapes, and other fruits in their season.

Spring Creek runs through the place.

IRON ORE.

From surface indications and tests made, it is believed that a valuable deposit of the best iron ore underlies the western part of the farm, needing only to be developed to enrich the owner.

Pleasantly located, with a soil of great fertility, and possessing the advantages of town and country in its proximity to churches, schools, mills, stores and markets, this property will commend itself to any one who is either looking for a desirable and comfortable home or wanting to make a good investment of capital.

HOUSE AND LOT.

An adjoining half-acre lot with a house thereon, will be sold either with the farm, or separately, to suit purchasers.

For terms and particulars apply to Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, indigestion, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night, after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Internal, External and Itching Piles yield at once on the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain upon the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price, 50 cents. Ask your druggist for it, and when you cannot obtain it of him, we will send it, prepaid, on receipt of price. Address, The Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua Ohio. Sold by F. Potts Green. 21-17t

If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening at a distance of 10 inches, your eyes are failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible. If they assist the vision use them. There is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the print is not magnified; it should look natural size but plain.

It is known to all who have been compelled to resort to the use of Spectacles (notwithstanding they may be perfectly fitted to correct the optical defects), that for some cause, not until recently well defined, their use was attended with fatiquing, smarting, and otherwise disagreeable sensations. This is a universal fact of experience, and has been supposed to be entirely beyond remedy. This disagreeable sensation and disturbance of the eye is produced chiefly, perhaps we ought to say entirely, from the fact that ordinary lenses increase the sensation of heat (to which the eye, more than any other organ or part of the body, is sensitive), as also the actinic or chemical properties of the rays of light.

It is well known that these peculiarities of light are identified with certain colors of each ray; and the point of importance, or without using technicalities, is to construct lenses so that these properties of light shall be neutralized; this can be done by introducing a neutralizing tint into their manufacture, the difficulty of which, however, consists in the selection of a color which shall have this effect, and, at the same time, shall not otherwise impair the lenses for purposes of vision. The

Arundel Tinted Lens

Is designed to effect this purpose. The peculiarity of its manufacture consists in the introduction into the glass of a slight Violet Color, in such manner that the high and low numbers of the lens prepared from this glass, although varying in thickness, are of the same delicate tint and of sufficient power to neutralize the heating and actinic power of the rays of light. Read the following:

[From R. S. Mershon, Esq., Zanesville, Ohio.]

"I have put the Arundels through the following tests:—I placed an eight-inch Arundel, and an eight-inch white lens side by side, sharply focused in the strong sunlight, with their foci directed on the bulbs of two thermometers, and the difference was four (4°) degrees in temperture in favor of the ARUNDEL. Again, I placed the same lenses side by side on a piece of sensitised photographic paper, and the white glass discolored the surface quicker than the ARUNDEL. These two tests prove these two points, viz: that the ARUNDEL intercepts the solar heat-rays and the chemical rays also."

And the following from a Centre county man whose letter can be seen at my store:

* * * "I am very much pleased with the glasses. They have been more beneficial to my eyes than all the medicine I ever put in them."

If you experience any unpleasantness in reading or can't see distinctly, come in and have your eyes tested. I think I have something good for you.

ELY'S CREAM BALM

Having gained an enviable local reputation, displacing all other preparations in the vicinity of discovery is, on its merits alone, recognized as a wonderful remedy wherever known. A fair trial will convince the most skeptical of its curative powers. It effectually cleanses the nasal passages of Catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions, allays inflammation and irritation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores the senses of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized after a few applications. A thorough treatment as directed will cure Catarrh. As a household remedy for cold in the head it is unequaled. MRS. LYDIA E. PINKHAM
OF LYNN, MASS.

DISCOVERER OF
LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

The Positive Cure
For all Female Complaints.

This preparation, as its name signifies, consists of Vegetable Properties that are harmless to the most delicate invalid. Upon one trial the merits of this Compound will be recognized, as relief is immediate; and when its use is continued, in ninety-nine cases in a hundred, a permanent cure is effected, as thousands will testify. On account of its proven merits, it is to-day recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country.

It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life. It will dissolve and expel tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development. The tendency to cancerous humors there is checked very speedily by its use.

In fact it has proved to be the greatest and best remedy that has ever been discovered. It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach

It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

For Kidney Complaints of either sex this compound is unsurpassed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared at 233 and 235 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass. Price $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. THE LATEST NEWS.

Stock of Silver Dollars.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The Treasury Department, owing to the relatively small stock of silver dollars now on hand, has found it necessary to suspend the exchange of silver certificates for gold coin or bullion. The law authorises the holder of silver bullion to deposit it in the Treasury and take out certificates. Two years ago the question was raised whether any one could take out gold from the Treasury and put in silver certificates. It was found that under the rule of the department by which any person to whom payments are due may receive the amount due in the currency of his choice, those to whom silver dollars were paid immediately redeposited them and took out silver certificates. It was accordingly decided to allow persons to deposit gold, and upon such deposits silver certificates were issued, the Treasury at the same time holding an amount of standard silver dollars equal to the amount that had been thus deposited. This practice has been continued to such an extent that there are now outstanding, of silver certificates issued under these conditions, the amount of $66,327,670. Against this the Treasury holds of silver. $66,576,378, leaving only 24,800 silver dolars in the Treasury, which are not represented by out-standing certificates, and for this reason the Treasury has seen fit to rescind the the order under which the issuance of silver certificates against gold coin was authorized. These $66,000,000 of silver certificates, however, do not represent the entire amount of silver dollars outstanding. The Mint has coined something like 100,000,000 of silver dollars. There is in the Treasury of silver certificates, not represented by the $66,000,000 above named, $7,488,900. The total amount of standard silver dollars actually in in circulation is about $40,000,000. The Mint, for more than a year, has been coining the minimum amount authorized by the silver dollar law, 2,000,000 per month.

The Flurry over Rebel Bonds.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Times, in its financial article, says 'the purchases of Confederate bonds are believed to be entirely due to the action of a clique prepared to run up the price of any rubbish, if they think there is the faintest chance of alluring the public into joining in the venture. The Daily News knows of no amount in the Bank of England or elsewhere in any way available for these mischievous claims. The Confederacy doubtless had other liabilities which probably long ago absorbed the money originally lying here. It is greatly to be hoped no more agitation will be suffered on the subject. The Standard reproduces the report of counsel retained to press the claims of bondholders to the sum in the Bank of England.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The St. James Gazette demonstrates the hollowness of the claim of holders of Confederate bonds and the futility of endeavoring to exercise a pressure of the Southern States by the means resorted to with indifferent success in the cases of sovereign States, such as Turkey and Peru.

A Crazy Woman's Horrible Death.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—While demented from malarial fever Elizabeth Kress, aged 22, wife of Joseph Kress, a cigar-maker, cut her throat with a table-knife at her home, in Division street, last night, and drank a quantity of kerosene besides. She was cared for by her friends, but at five o'clock this morning eluded their vigilance, got to the roof of her residence, a five-story building, and jumped into the yard. She was instantly killed.

Newark's Broken Bank.

NEWARK, Nov. 3.—Warren Ackerman, a former director of the Mechanics' Bank, who remonstrated against one-man power, has begun a lawsuit against President Halsey for debt caused by negligence. Nugent's counsel denies that he received the large amounts stated by Cashier Baldwin. He says he cannot ascertain how his account stood at the bank, because Baldwin had his accounts so mixed up that he was in the latter's power. None of the other banks of the city are seriously involved with the Mechanics, and will not he affected. The president of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company telegraphs its agents that the bank's failure does not embarrass them, their deposits having been steadily reduced since last spring, and the receipts from the agencies have been deposited in the State Bank.

Protection Against Cranks.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—In the Chamber of Commerce to-day a communication was read from the Department of State, Washington, acknowledging the receipt of resolutions passed by the Chamber touching the death of the late President Garfield. A resolution was adopted declaring that 'in the opinion of the Chamber suitable provision should be made by Congress for the punishment of persons threatening or doing violence to public officials or committees, or making fraudulent or unwarrantable demands upon them,or vexatiously obtruding upon them after considerate answers have been returned to their applications, and to deter insane persons from frequenting public offices and buildings and following citizens in the service of the country.'

The Supreme Court Vacancy.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—In conversation yesterday with a distinguished member of the Chicago bar touching the vacancy on the bench of the United States Supreme Court, the President asked the question if the members of the bar generally had discussed the fact that the place had not yet been filled. The answer was made that the profession take a deep interest in the matter and would like to see the vacancy filled. The President said he had not made an appointment during the special session of the Senate for the reason that he was pressed with other matters and he did not want to make any mistake in filling the vacancy. He said he considered the appointment one of the most important he would be called upon to make, and for that reason he wanted to take time and make the best possible selection.

Graveyard Insurance.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 2.—At the to-day's session of the Harrisburg Conference of the Luthern Church a resolution was passed stating that, since "the evils resulting from what is called 'speculative or graveyard' life insurance have become so grave, having not only led men to disregard the life and welfare of fellow men, but even violate the ties of relationship and homes, and since the root of the evil lies in a spirit of avarice and covetousness, we, as ministers of the Gospel and members of the Church of Christ, do hereby express our unqualified disapprobation of this deplorable evil and should seek to enlighten our communities in this nefarious business and should teach healthful things on the growing sin of making haste to be rich, even at the cost of principle and the sanctities of life and honor."

A Youth Killed by a Picking Machine.

READING, Nov. 3.—Henry Funck, aged fifteen, met with a horrible death here to-day. He was caught by the steel prongs of a picker machine cylinder in Miner's wool hat factory and drawn in head first. His face was ground to pieces and his right arm torn off. When found his heels were in the air and the belt of the machine had been thrown off. His death was instantaneous. The cylinder made eight hundred revolutions per minute and was running at full speed.

Affairs in Ireland.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The disturbances continue at Belmullet, county Mayo. Four of the wounded in the affray of Thursday are dead and six more deaths are expected. The military and police are on the spot. The roads leading to Aglow are blockaded with stone, and a bridge has been broken for the purpose of impeding the movements of the military.

It is said Saxton has been given to understand that he is to go to France as a condition of his release.

Archbishop Purcell's Condition.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.—The reports of the rapidly failing condition of Archbishop Purcell are exaggerated. His condition is practically unchanged since an actual improvement which took place some weeks ago. He is able to converse with his attendants and takes daily drives through the adjoining country. This information is from the highest authority.

Political Murders in the South.

VICKSBURG, Miss., Nov. 3—A Herald special states that several colored men on their way to a Fusion meeting were fired on from an ambush and Perry Thompson killed and two others dangerously wounded. All were inoffensive citizens, and it is believed the assassins intended to shoot a prominent colored politician and a candidate on the Fusion ticket, but they had already passed.

Serious Hallow-E'en Sport.

BLAIRSVILLE, Nov. 3.—On Monday night last, being Hallow-E'en, several young men and boys, who reside in Cokeville, set out to have some "fun," as they styled it. they visited the farmyard of a Mr. Breniser, it seems, and concluded to take the wagon away. This was, however, interfered with, the dogs of the farmer threatened to do bodily injury to the boys, who, taking in all things, thought best to take to their heels and run, which they did. The dogs followed them, and the boys turned to contest the ground with the dogs. While this contest was going on, which it seems was not far from the farmhouse, some one fired off a gun at the boys, which was loaded with bird shot, and the contents of the gun were lodged in the right arm and right side of the face of Samuel Hogue. The young man was taken to his mother's house in Cokeville, and Dr. S. Claget, of this place, was sent for. The Doctor made a careful examination of the wounded parts and found that about two dozen shots had entered the arm and face. Several shot entered just below the right eye, the nerve of which seems to be so much injured that the sight may be destroyed, and the physician is as yet unable to say what the result may be, for should inflammation set in it may materially endanger the life of the patient. As to who fired the shot seems to be a mystery. The young man alleges it was a certain person, but this is only guessed. There promises to be a court trial, and, if so, the true person may be discovered. For this reason we refrain from giving any names.

Arctic Region Exploration.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The first meeting of the Geographical Society will be devoted entirely to Arctic matters. The subjects for discussion will be the whereabouts of Leigh Smith, who set out early in the summer for Franz Josef's land, and has not yet returned; also the Dutch expedition in the Willem Barents, supposed to be caught in the ice in the neighborhood of Spitzenbergen, the fate of the Jeanette, and the proposed international search expedition next summer and the scheme of Polar observatories. Capt. Adams, an Arctic whaler, says of his recent voyaging, that had he not been on a whaling voyage he could have reached Dease and Simpson's Straits and made the northwest passage. "I believe," he said, "the northwest passage can be made by way of Peel Sound, and by that way only, and that if Franklin's vessels had been steamers he would have made it in 1848. I may myself live to go into Lancaster Sound and report myself at Honolulu."

Death of a Noted Citizen.

WHEELING, Nov. 2.—Judge William Kennon died at his late residence, in St. Clairsville, O., this morning, of paralysis, aged eighty-four years. He was born in Fayette county, Pa., in 1797, and located in St. Clairsville, O., in 1822. He was elected to Congress in 1828, and served two terms. In 1834 he was again elected, serving from 1835 to 1837. In 1840 he was elected Judge of the 15th Judicial circuit, serving ten years. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1850, and the same year was Supreme Judge and president of the commission which made the present code of civil procedure. All these positions he filled with distinguished ability.

A Rebellion Among Students.

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—Some time ago a melon patch was raided near the Agricultural College at Lansing. The matter was settled by one of the raiders. The next night one hundred of the students compelled the owner of the melons to refund the amount paid. The faculty tried to get the students to return the money, but they have refused. On Wednesday night all the students engaged in the raid were suspended. A meeting of the students was then held and they voted, 85 to 35, to rebel and leave in a body to-day The outcome remains to be seen.

Minister Hamlin.

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—This afternoon a number of friends of the Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, of Maine, United States Minister to Spain, entertained him at a dinner in this city. Among those present were A. W. Beard, D. W. Gooch, E. F. Waters, General A. B. Underwood, Oliver Ames, E. S. Tobey, John W. Candler, member of Congress elect,and Selwin Z. Bowman Jewett vs. Vanderbilt.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5.—The supersedeas bond to stay the execution of the judgment of the Common Pleas case of Jewett et al. vs. the C., C., C. & I. and the C., H. & D. Railroads, J. H. Devereux et al., was filed in the Supreme Court this morning. This will bring the Jewett vs. Vanderbilt litigation to a standstill for a few days.

Gold Fever in Colorado.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 3.—Considerable excitement exists here over the published results of the working of the recently discovered gold-bearing lode in the Summit district. It is thought it will prove to be the largest and most valuable gold mine in the United States. The assays, it is said, run as high as $20,000 per ton.

Accredited to two Countries.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—Chang Chao Yee, the new Chinese Minister to the United States, is also accredited to Peru, whither he will proceed after settling arrangements at Washington for his permanent residence.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

Increased Railroad Facilities Demanded.

The business of the country has never been so embarrassed for the want of railroad transportation as during the present and past seasons. All manufacturers, shippers of coal, iron ore and lumber, have not been able to fill the demands upon them, for the reason that there is not a supply of cars. During the low freights from the West, on grain and provision, every effort was made by the railroad companies to compete with each other, in securing the largest amount of freight. The result of this was, that they get so many loaded cars that their motive power was inadequate to move them. This added more difficulties, by adding thousands of loaded cars which could not be moved, which compelled the railroad companies to advance the rate of freights and charge demurage on all cars that were not unloaded in twenty-four hours after arriving at their destination. Box cars have been more plenty since. There is little change in the situation in the supply of cars for the transportation of coal. The supply of gondolas, known as flat and hopper cars, is not equal to one-third of the demand. The miners and shippers of coal inform their customers that it is utterly impossible to furnish a full supply of coal. In further proof of the situation, we have been handed the following letter addressed to Messers. Alexander & Co., coal dealers of this place, by Messrs. Conyngham & Co., of Wilkesbarre, Pa. The latter company are the shipping agents of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's anthracite coal at that place. It would be reasonable to suppose that the railroad company would furnish their own agents with cars, if they had an adequate supply. The following is the letter:

WILKESBARRE, PA., Nov. 4, 1881.

Gentlemen: In reply to yours of the 3d inst., we very much regret to say that we cannot promise to ship you the coal as fast as you desire it, but we will do the best we can for you. The supply of cars is so very short this year, that all our customers are in the same plight as yourselves. We do not get one-third of the number of cars daily needed to fill our orders. We have made every possible effort at head-quarters and everywhere else to get more cars, but to no purpose. There are not enough cars in existence to meet the demands.

Mr. Conyngham was told last week by Mr. Cassatt, First Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., that there is very little probability of an improvement in transportation until the middle of next year. Under these circumstances you will perceive that we are not in a position to promise our customers anything very definite. All we can say is, we shall do our best for all, and that your orders shall have the best attention that lies in our power, equally with others.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed.) CONYNGHAM & Co.

To which Alexander & Co. append the following card to the public:

We have many customers in Bellefonte and vicinity who have been depending on us for coal. The above explains why it has not been delivered. We are sparing no efforts to deliver the coal as fast as it comes. We hope to get everybody supplied in the course of a week or ten days.

ALEXANDER & Co.

Howorth's Grand Hibernica.

This popular Irish comedy will appear in the Opera House, in this place, on Saturday evening, November 12. It has been here before, and the people of Bellefonte are well acquainted with its merits. The company has been enlarged and much improved since its last appearance here, and the entertainment will be correspondingly better. All who attend will be sure of a fine entertainment. It is strongly endorsed by the press, of which the following from the Reading Daily News is a sample:

Howorth's Comedy Company and Grand Hibernica gave a very laughable and meritorious entertainment last night at the Grand Opera House. Their ten specialty people are all first-class and the scenery and tableaux are grand.

—The Pennsylvania railroad people assert that if the Vanderbilt lines start a 26-hour train the Pennsylvania new limited express will run between Chicago and New York in 24 hours. They claim that their line is two hours shorter than the Central. All right, let them put as many fast trains on the road as they choose. So far as we are concerned, when we travel we shall take the train that moves at moderate speed, for if an accident occurs it is not pleasant to be hurled into eternity too quickly. We believe that most of the citizens of Centre county agree with us in this opinion, and also in the belief that Sechler & Co., in the Bush House row, sell the best groceries to be purchased within a thousand miles of Bellefonte. Everything at that store is of the finest quality. Those who buy of Sechler can save money.

—Harry Green continues to sell the choicest cigars ever brought to Bellefonte.

All From Eagleville.

Messrs. Samuel and J. I. Koons have a log job at Beech Creek, containing several million feet of logs.

Mr. J. I. Koons, of Eagleville, has recently erected a fine brick residence which is an ornament to the town. Some of Mr. Koons' neighbors should follow his example.

Mr. Samuel Koons, of Eagleville, is the proprietor of a strictly temperance hotel. He conducts it in a first-class manner, and always endeavors to entertain his guests pleasantly. All visitors at Eagleville should stop at Mr. Koons' hotel.

The mercantile firm of Quigley & Singer, of Eagleville, have recently disposed of their establishment to Mr. H. W. Hoover, of Port Matilda. Mr. Quigley will soon again embark in the business, and is now erecting a building for that purpose on his own premises. The new building will be large and convenient with a length of sixty feet. Mr. Singer has contracted to clerk for Mr. Hoover.

Notes from Rebersburg.

A correspondent from the above named borough who says he "knows whereof he speaks," informs us that Judge Frank, one of the merchants of that place, is doing a lively business and also that Dr. J. W. Bright,of medical fame, is healing the sick and preventing those who are well from growing ill. He also informs us that Mr. John A. Miller, the only tanner in the place, is doing a rushing business. We are pleased to hear of the general prosperity of the place, and hope that it will continue.

—A Williamsport contemporary contains the following complimentary notice of the Brockerhoff House and of its new proprietor, Mr. C. G. McMillen, who will take charge on the 1st of January:

"Bellefonte is one of the prettiest and most enterprising towns in Pennsylvania. It is also celebrated for its fine hotels. One which has achieved a wide reputation is the Brockerhoff House,run for many years by A. & H Brockerhoff. The new Brockerhoff will be owned and managed after the 1st of January by Mr. C. G. McMillen, who has been in this city for the past two days, stopping at the Hepburn House. Mr. McMillen has remodeled and refurnished this house entire, has been over five years "on the road," over five years in the hotel business, and consequently knows the wants of the traveling public."

—The finest entertainments in the United States visit Scranton, and yet the Scranton Republican, the foremost journal of the coal regions, says of Howorth's Grand Hibernica, which will visit Bellefonte next Saturday night, that "this great entertainment which has exhibited in our city the past two evenings,has drawn the largest houses of the season, and better satisfied audiences than were present on these occasions have seldom left the Academy of Music. We have no hesitation in saying that this is the best show of the kind, both in talent of the company and quality of scenery, which has ever visited Scranton."

—The telegraph informs us that six inches of snow fell at Erie on Friday. There were also heavy falls of snow at different points throughout the State. Although, so far as we have heard, there has been no appreciable fall in the price of groceries, yet Sechler & Co., of this place, sell the best in the market. Their sales are constantly increasing. A full and carefully-selected stock is always on hand. The sweetest, juciest meats can be bought at Sechler's meat market. In short, about all the eatables required in a family can be bought at this famous down-town store.

—Will it pay? is the first question asked by the American people before an investment. That it will pay can be demonstrated to you beyond doubt; the total cost to give to you proof positive of what can be done in the worst case of rheumatism is 75 cents invested in a bottle of Dr. Bosanko's rheumatic cure.

—In everything that goes to make up a first-class grocery the store of Sechler & Co. excels.

—For syrups, sugars, coffees, meats or whatever you want in the grocery line go to Sechler's.

—Sunday next begins the week of prayer for Young Men's Christian Associations.

—Try Harry Green's cigars.

—An immense stock of clothing, overcoats' ulsters, suits and pants at Lyon & Co's.

—The largest assortment of black and colored cashmeres, new bronze cashmeres from 25cts. up to $1.35 from the regular width up to 48 inches wide at Lyon & Co's.

—Ladies' dolmans from $5 up to very best. Ladies' light coats and black coats from $2.25 up. A large stock of children's coats at Lyon & Co's.

Millions in Ashes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—A very destructive fire occurred in Hoboken, N. J., this afternoon, totally destroying what was known as the Eagle dock, owned by the Hoboken Dock Company of Hamburg, and leased by the Wilson and Eagle Steamship Companies. Also two full cargoes of merchandise,one just unloaded from the Wilson line steamer Rialto, plying between Hoboken and Hull, England, the other in readiness for a National line steamer to sail in a few days for London and Liverpool. Most of the merchandise, including a large quantity of steel rails and cotton, was owned by New York merchants. The dock is fully insured. It was constructed eight years ago at a cost of $250.000. Several cargo lighters,lying in close proximity to the fire, were also destroyed. The steamship Rialto had a narrow escape, and but for the arrival of a tug would have been destroyed. Her rigging caught fire in several places. She was hauled into the steamer and anchored. The excursion steamer Plymouth Rock in winter quarters in the vicinity caught fire in several places but was towed out and escaped with trifling injury. The origin of the fire is attributed to drippings from an oil torch used by a watchman to light the gas on the dock. Owing to ill feeling between the Hoboken firemen and the city authorities on account of the failure of the latter to furnish supplies the fire department did not turn out until the mayor had given them certain guarantees. They reached the fire an hour after it broke out. In the meantime the New York and Jersey City departments had responded to an appeal from the mayor of Hoboken for aid.

Shot Dead at his Office Door.

OMAHA, Nov. 7.—Colonel Watson B. Smith, Clerk of the United States Circuit Court, was found dead at 2 o'clock this morning lying outside his office door, where he had been shot by an unknown assassin. There is great public excitement and a mass meeting is called to express horror of the crime and take steps toward the arrest of the assassin. Colonel Smith was a highly-respected citizen, a soldier in the late war, and leaves an estimable family. He has been Clerk of the Court fourteen years, and the Chairman of the Committee of Citizens to enforce the Slocumb Liquor License Law, and he has been very prominent in its aggressive work.

A Forger at Work at Williamsport.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Nov. 7.—A man calling himself Henry L. Williams, of Ontario, received $700 from a bank here on Friday upon two forged drafts drawn upon the First National Bank of New York. Williams had been here for a month claiming to be acting for a Canadian company in search of sulphur land. A gentleman whose acquaintance he formed while here endorsed the drafts. Williams disappeared late on Friday night. The forgery was exposed by a dispatch from the New York bank yesterday.

Pleasant Addition to Pharmacy.

Seidlitine Seidlitz Powders are put up in elegant wooden boxes, instead of the usual white and blue papers, and are therefore portable, convenient and retain their freshness many months. They are warranted made of pure materials of first quality, giving great purity, full weight and uniformity, and forming an effervescing aperient drink, as refreshing and pleasant as a glass of lemonade. 1m EASILY PROVEN.—It is easily proven that malarial fevers, constipation, torpidity of the liver and kidneys, general debility, nervousness and neuralgic ailments yield readily to this great disease conqueror, Hop Bitters. It repairs the ravages of disease by converting the food into rich blood, and it gives new life and vigor to the aged and infirm always.

MANALIN regulates the bowels and liver.

The Star Route Cases.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—MacVeagh states that he long ago declared that he would prepare the star route cases for court and then drop them; that he never had any intention of going beyond the grand jury with them, and in pursuance of this plan he employed eminent counsel for the prosecution. Therefore he maintains that he can not justly be charged with abandoning the cases or shirking duty in insisting upon leaving the Cabinet. The President is undoubtedly desirous of holding MacVeagh until these cases are disposed of, and he does not intend to let James leave the Cabinet until the star route prosecutions are ended. The apparent dilatoriness on the part of the prosecution has had the effect of awakening a suspicion here that the prosecutors do not regard the evidence as strong as they have stated. All seeming hesitation on the part of the Government renders the defendants more defiant than ever. The defendants say that MacVeagh has run, and that James is preparing to back out by leaving the Cabinet in a month or two.

The Millers Moving.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 4.—The Millers' Association to-day passed resolutions asking the Chamber of Commerce to enforce a rigid inspection of wheat, a vast quantity of which is coming in from the Northwest which, while it looks fair and grades No. 2, and even No. 1, is injured by rain and is damp and tough and totally unfit for flour. The association also telegraphs as follows:

To the Millers' Association, Minneapolis:—At a meeting of the millers of this city to-day, it was resolved that owing to the unwarranted condition of the wheat market, which is manipulated in the interests of speculation and against all legitimate business, we believe it to be for the interests of the millers of this county to make common cause and shut down their mills until the price of wheat shall be at a figure to compete with the markets of the world. All mills here have shut down and invite your co-operation.

Newark Bank Wreck.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The wrecking of the Mechanics' National Bank of Newark seems already almost a forgotten affair. President Sherman, of the Mechanics' National Bank, the New York agency of the broken bank, says the losses of his bank are small. A Washington correspondent says: The bank defalcation caused the President to call the attention of the acting Secretary of the Treasury to the system of bank examinations. He says the Newark defalcation shows that either the bank examiners are inefficient, or their inspection of the books of the national banks are merely nominal, or their inspection so infrequent as to be of no practical account in detecting fraud. The property of Nugent & Company, of this city, has been attached on behalf of Pickard & Anderson and Frederick Probst & Co., and the property of the wrecked bank in this city attached for the benefit of the West Side Bank.

The President's Movements.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Mr. Arthur goes to New York to-morrow and will not return until the middle or last of next week. He will then go direct to the White House an remain there. He will not go to the Soldiers' Home. When at the White House yesterday he selected his room in the northwestern portion of the house.

Investing in Coal Lands.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—A party of distinguished men, consisting in part of Secretaries Blaine and Windom, Senators Bayard Davis, McPherson and August Schell, W. H. Barnum, General Sickles and Governor Hamilton, of Maryland, have gone to West Virginia to examine some undeveloped coal lands, with a view to making investments.

Postmasters Placed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The President to-day commissioned Statham postmaster at Lynchburg, Va., vice Wilson, suspended under the tenure of office law. The following postmasters have been appointed: Jacob Steininger, Jefferson City, Mo; Cyrus W. Jamison, Memphis, Mo.; Joseph W. Harris, Moberly, Mo.

Irish Promises to Pay.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A curious plan has been adopted in some parts of the West of Ireland with the view of keeping the "no rent" manifesto before the tenants. It takes the form of promisory note, which has been circulated among the farmers attending a fair at Moate, County Westmeath. The note is a promise to pay rent on the day Parnell, Davitt and the other suspects are released. It is intended that the note shall be signed by tenants and sent to landlords.

Defending the Star-route Ring.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Colonel Bob Ingersoll finished his fine argument in the Star-route case this morning, speaking for two hours very eloquently. He was listened to with close attention by a crowded court house. His anecdotes and witty remarks were thoroughly enjoyed and his eloquence was applauded. He maintained that the information was constitutional and the proceeding under it unlawful; that every count in it was contradictory, and that the affidavits supporting in were null and void. He argued that the Grand Jury was the bulwark of the citizen against calumny and oppression, and ridiculed Bliss' argument, and especially his reference to the practice of the Courts in the Southern District of New York. He compared the present proceedings to those under the Star Chamber and dwelt upon the fact that since the birthday of English manhood and liberty, on the day of the Star-chamber process information was abolished, citizens accused of infamous crimes had always enjoyed the right of trial by Grand Jury.

Confessing Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—A few minutes before midnight last night a man entered the Fourth District police station and giving his name as Peter W. Abbott, said that he desired to surrender himself. He then made a statement to House Surgeon Taylor, who was on duty, to the effect that he (Abbot) knew that he was accused of the murder of Samuel H. Clugston at Valley Forge last spring and he wished to be held to answer for the crime. At 9 this morning he was taken by Sergt. Smith to the Central Station where he made a statement to the Chief of Police, in which he declares that he murdered Clugston. The Chief of Police, however, denies that the prisoner is detained on account of that murder. The Chief telegraphed to the District Attorney at Norristown that a man was under arrest who claimed to have committed the Clugston murder. It has since been learned that the prisoner is Christian Henze, an old thief, who has served eight years in the Eastern Penitentiary and served a term in the House of Correction. It is believed that his story is a fabrication, and that he is partially demented.

The Von Steubens at Boston.

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—The German visitors arrived in Boston at 2,55 p. m. to-day, via the Boston and Albany Railroad. They were received at the depot by a committee from the City Government and taken to the Hotel Vendome. The afternoon was passed quietly, and in the evening the visitors dined with Mr. Schlesinger, the German Consul. To-morrow they will be taken to the industrial fairs, and will lunch at 1 o'clock at the Hotel Vendome. After lunch they will be driven through the suburbs and to the monument at Charleston. In the evening the party will be tendered a reception by the Orpheus Club and the Turners, at Turn Halle.

The French Visitors in Newport.

NEWPORT, Nov. 1.—The French delegation arrived here from New York soon after 8 this morning. The steamer Providence, upon which they took passege, having been delayed by a storm on the Sound, the party was brought here from Fall River on a special train furnished gratuitously by the Old Colony Railroad Company. The visitors were met on their arrival by a reception committee and escorted to their headquarters at Hartmann's where, at a later hour, the committee was introduced to the delegates by M. Max Outrey, the French Minister.

The visitors were taken out for a drive in the afternoon, and were shown various points of interest in in and about the city. In the evening they were tendered a grand dinner, at which the State was officially represented by Lieut-Gov. Fay. Tomorrow Gov. Littlefield and the members of the General Assembly will meet the visitors at the State House, where speeches will be made by the Governor, Minister Outrey, and others. The programme to morrow also includes visits to the torpedo station and other places, the day's festivities to conclude with a dinner at the Casino.

Icebergs Coming South.

ST. JOHN'S, N. B., Nov. 1.—Two vast islands of ice were visible in the offing, driving rapidly southward. At sunrise yesterday these huge bergs were not discernible within the range of the horizon. Their great drift rate may be deduced from the fact that about half an hour before sunset they bore, the one southeast by south from the north head of the harbor of St. John's, and the other southeast. They were then distant thirty and thirty-two miles respectively, the northern one being most distant from the land. This berg is about fifteen hundred feet in length, about one hundred and twenty feet in average height, and has two spires surmounting it that soar not less than one hundred and fifty feet above the general level of the ice island. The more southern berg is about eight hundred feet in length and its general front elevation is somewhat under one hundred feet. One portion rises one hundred and twenty feet above the main body of the berg. The place from which the above observation was made is located five hundred and twenty-seven feet above the sea level. The approximate drift rate of these icebrgs is two and a quarter miles per hour.

Distinguished Visitors at Atlanta.

ATLANTA, Ga, Nov. 1.—Edward Atkinson and fifteen gentlemen connected with cotton industries that employ $45,000,000 capital and run 150,000 spindles arrived here this noon. They will remain South three weeks. Wednesday Hon. G. B. Loring, Commissioner of Agriculture, will meet the cotton-growers in convention, called by him at the Exposition, when he will speak on Southern agriculture, and Professor Riley, United States Entomologist, will explain the new method of destroying the cotton worm, which causes an average annual loss of $15,000,000 to planters. Thursday will be manufacturers' day, with an address from Mr. Atkinson. A display of blooded cattle and mules begins today. The exhibitors met Saturday and appointed a committee to secure reduced excursion rates over the railroads. They adopted a resolution declaring this the greatest exhibition of American industries and natural resources ever held.

A Boom in Building in Washington

WASHINGTON, November. 1.—Washington is having a decided building boom at present, more than 450 new dwellings are in process of construction, and forty one of these new houses represent an aggregate estimate cost of $562,600. Prominent among those who are building are the following: Hon Jame G. Blaine Twentieth Street and Massachusetts Avenue, estimated cost $48,000; Colonel Jerome Bonaparte, K and Seventeenth Streets, $30,000; Hon. George M. Robeson, O and Sixteenth Streets, $28,000; Hon. Stanley Matthews, N and Eighteenth Streets, $26,000; Hon. William Windom, Sixteenth Street and Massachusetts Avenue, $25,000; General W. B. Hazen K and Sixteenth Streets, $24,300; Hon. G. H. Pendleton, Sixteenth Street between Scott Circle and O Street, $20,000; Senator C. H. Van. Wyck, Eighteen Street and Massachusetts Avenue, $19,000.

Fining a Whole College.

GENEVA, N. Y., Nov. 1.—There is a rebellion in Hobart College. The juniors had the first annual class supper last week at the International Hotel, and returning to the college at midnight, discovered that the freshmen and sophomores were absent from the building, having gone on a lark across the lake. When they returned all the classes joined in songs and a jollification, breaking doors and winding up by ringing the college bell according to ancient custom. Next morning a fine of $2 each or suspension unless it should be paid in a week was bulletined. The gross sum of the fines would not be great, but in separate and joint meetings the classes have resolved not to pay the fine, and demand that the rule be rescinded.

Two Railroad Wrecks.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 31.—As passenger train No. 154 on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad was about to cross the bridge on the Orange River, eighty miles south of Sedalia, last night, the engine struck a mule standing on the track. The engine left the rails, and the cars went down with a terrible crash. James F. Wagner, the engineer, was killed, and his body has not yet been recovered. The engine is covered with water, having gone down the depth of ten feet. W. W. McDowell, a fireman, was bruised, and may be internally injured, and the eleven-year-old son of the engineer had his face and forehead badly cut, and his hip dislocated. The train was twelve hours behind time.

A mixed passenger and freight train which left Boonville at 7 p. m. yesterday, on the Boonville, St. Louis and Southern Railroad, was wrecked at Bennett, seven miles north of Tipton. Three freight cars loaded with cattle went through a bridge across a small stream, and about one-half of the cattle were killed or fatally injured. The passenger cars remained on the track.

Railroad Wreck at Lancaster.

LANCASTER, Oct. 30.—There was a rather serious railroad wreck near the stock yards, this city, about six o'clock this evening, caused by the engine of a coal train running into the caboose of a coal oil train in front of it. The caboose was crushed to pieces and thrown upon the north track, blockading it, and an oil tank was thrown partly over an en bankment and partly across the south track. The engine of the rear train was upset across both tracks and wrecked and the burning oil from the tank set fire to it and to two or three coal cars. The burning mass lit up the heavens for miles around. Trains were delayed for two or three hours, but are now running past the wreck on siding. No one was seriously hurt by the accident.

Judge Bunn for Territorial Governor.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The name of Ex-Register William M. Bunn, of Philadelphia, has been strongly urged upon the President for the Governorship of Arizona Territory, in place of Fremont. Congressmen Harmer, Bingham and O'Neill, with Disston and a number of other prominent Republicans, have urged the appointment, and both Senators Cameron and Mitchell assent to it. It is expected that Mr. Bunn will be appointed in the course of a few weeks. There are a dozen applicants for the place, but it is likely to be conceded to Pennsylvania. A number of the prominent newspaper men of Philadelphia have recommended Mr. Bunn.

A Train Wrecked by a Mule.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30.—As a passenger train on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad was about to cross the bridge over Osage river south of Sedalia, last night, the engine struck a mule standing on the track when the engine left the rail and all went down with a terrible crash. J. F. Wagner, the engineer, was killed and his body has not yet been recovered, the engine being covered with water having gone down to the depth of ten feet. W. W. McDowell, a fireman, was bruised and may be internally injured, and the eleven-year old son of the engineer had his face and forehead badly cut and his hip dislocated. The train was twelve hours behind time.

An Attempted $60,000 Robbery.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct., 30—Judge Peloubet to-day began an examination in the case of W. J. Sipple, who, with one or more confederates, attempted last Monday night to rob a paymaster of the Erie Road of $60,000 and was only prevented by the precautions of Superintendent Hill. The police produced an umbrella of Sipple's, found in a carriage hired by him on Monday about seven and returned at eleven. He has persisted that he had lent his umbrella to two unknown men last Monday and that he was home and in bed at 9.40 last Monday evening. The further examination in the case was adjourned until next week.

Lawlessness in Arizona

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—A dispatch from Willcox, Arizona, says: "Major downing, who has been engaged in the timber trade, in the Chiri Cahua mountains, south of Fort Bowie, supplying the principal trade in Tombstone, reports that he has been compelled to suspend business on account of a raid by cowboys, who stole nearly all his stock. The civil authorities seem powerless to cope with this gang, and it has practically taken possession of the territory lying south of San Simon Station and east of Tombstone.

Canal Boatmen More Hopeful.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Oct. 31.—It has been raining steadily here all day, slowly at first in the morning, but more rapidly in the afternoon. This evening the rainfall is heavy at times. There is very little wind. About one and a half inches of water had fallen up to 8 o'clock this evening. The last boat through the Delaware and Hudson Canal was to arrive at Delaware to-day, but later advices state that the water is beginning to rise slowly in the long level and the boatmen are somewhat encouraged again.

Freak of a Lunatic.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—A tall, broad-shouldered, well dressed man called at the White House this morning about ten o'clock, and asked to see the President. The usher told him the President was not in, whereupon he delivered the following letter: "John Wooling, you are hereby informed that Dr. John Noetling is lawfully elected President of the United States and occupies the White House every day." Signed "Almighty God, communicated by the Holy Spirit." This, of course, put the usher on his guard, and he quietly invited him to take a seat in the ante-room until the President could see him. Sergeant Dinsmore was sent for, and on his asking what business the stranger had with the President he handed him a paper with the following request to be shown to the President: "I desire to see the accounts of the President." After vainly trying to get the man to leave Sergeant Dinsmore attempted to arrest him. A fearful struggle took place, in which the madman was with difficulty overpowered by three attendants of the White House. He was finally thrown down, and his pistol, which he had grasped to draw at the beginning of the struggle, was taken from him. It was a seven barrelled revolver of small calibre, and was fully loaded. The madman was taken to the police headquarters. His name he gave as Dr. John Noetling; although he had been at a hotel here since the 25th of September under the name of John Wooling; his home is in Colesville, Snyder county, Pa. He was here in May last and was then arrested by the police as a crank, and sent to his family in Pennsylvania.

Bolting Women.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The convention of the Woman's Christian Union, now in session here, has split in two over a proposed indorsement of the woman's suffrage movement. Ever since the convention assembled Susan B. Anthony has been trying with her practised hand to turn some of its enthusiasm into the mill race of the movement with which her name has been so long identified. She said she thought it a glorious opportunity to advance the 'good cause,' and she resolved to improve it. So in her diplomatic way she set about converting her sisters in the temperance cause into companions in the cause of woman's rights. So successful were her efforts that she had the pleasure of receiving assurances from a majority of the members of the convention that they would be willing to indorse her movement. She was, however, promptly opposed by a strong minority of the members of the convention, who protested stoutly, but unavailably, against the course proposed by their stalwart sisters, and finding that they failed to budge them one inch from their position they bolted, and will hold, to-morrow morning, an informal conference at which they will decide what the next step shall be. The formation of a new association by the bolters is among the probabilities. The split is the one topic of conversation to-night in religious circles.

Reclaiming the Potomac Flats.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The reclamation of the Potomac flats is made the subject of a report to the District Commissioner by Lieutenant Hoxie, of the engineer corps. The Lieutenant says urgent need exists for immediate attention to the outlet sewers on the river front and the reclamation of the marshes through which they must pass. The elements are simple and inexpensive. The plans contemplate doing only what the river is doing itself but too slowly. Work is necessary for the improvement of the river channel, and the danger to the health of the residents of the district may surely be urged upon Congress as an argument against further delay. Lieut. Hoxie also presents a plan contemplating the removal of steam railway tracks from the streets by tunneling and elevated railway. The cost of the changes are estimated at $2,365,824. The drainage and sewerage system and water supply are also considered and recommendations submitted.

Death of a Naval Officer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Lieutenant Frederick Collins, of the United States Navy, died here this evening of typhoid fever, after an illness of two weeks. He was a member of the Naval Advisory Board, now in session assembled, to report upon a reorganization of the Navy, and was appointed to fill a vacancy in the Board occasioned by the death of Captain Breeze. He was one of the most accomplished officers of the Navy. His remains will be interred at Annapolis.

Panama Canal Controversy.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Evening Standard says: "Few persons are surprised to learn that the United States would regard European guarantee of neutrality of the Panama canal an unauthorized intrusion. If Colombia should be hampered by a European guarantee it would create complications when the popular vote, one day inevitable, decrees union with the United States."

Pleuro-Pneumonia.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov 3.—Governor Cullom, having some time ago been advised by the United States Treasury Cattle commission to forbid the importation of cattle into Illinois from eastern States where pluro pneumonia exists, investigated the subject, and finding that stock men generally desired such action, he today issued a proclamation declaring that he has reason to believe that pleuro pneumonia among cattle has become epidemic in certain localities in Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey Delaware and Maryland, viz: In the county of Fairfield, in Connecticut; in the counties of Putnam, Westchester, New York; Kings and Queens, in New York; in the counties of Lehigh, Bucks, Berks, Montgomery, Philadelphia, Delaware, Chester, Lancaster, York, Adams and Cumberland in Pennsylvania; and in the greater part of the other States named. He therefore, under the State act of May 31, 1881, "to suppress and prevent the spread of pleuro-pneumonia among cattle," prohibits the importation of any domestic animals of the bovine species into this State from the aforesaid counties after the 10th inst., unless accompanied by a certificate of health properly signed by a duly authorized veterinary inspector. Any corporation or individual who shall transport, receive or convey such prohibited stock shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $1,000 nor more than $10,000 for each and every offence, and shall be liable for any and all damage or loss that may be sustained by any party or parties by reason of the importation of such stock.

The Meeting of Monarchs.

VIENNA, Oct. 28.—The programme for the reception of the King and Queen of Italy to-day is as follows: The Emperor and Crown Prince Rudolph will receive King Humbert and Queen Margarita at the railway station. The whole court, including the Empress, Crown Prince, Stephanie, Archduchess Gizla and Duke Ludewig, of Bavaria, will await the arrival of the guests at Hofburg. All the Archdukes are specially summoned to Vienna to the court supper to-night. The King and Queen arrived this afternoon. They were met at the station according to programme. The meeting was most affectionate. The monarchs kissed each on both cheeks. The Italian national hymn was sung by the choirmen. The party proceeded to the Hofburg and the King and Queen were presented at the palace to the Empress. The reception of the King in the streets of Vienna was most enthusiastic.

Archbishop Purcell Helpless.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 30.—A prominent Catholic gentleman, who has just returned from the Convent of the Ursulines, in Brown county, where Archbishop Purcell has been in retirement for more than two years, says that his Grace is growing weaker, and while he may live for some time, his death is liable to occur at any hour. He has become entirely helpless. The Ursuline Sisters wheel him about in a chair and feed him with a spoon. Latterly the paralysis has affected his tongue and it is with the greatest difficulty that he can make himself understood. He has rational hours, which are followed by mental confusion and an entire loss of memory. His Grace is in his eighty-second year. It is fifteen months since he last took part in the services at the Cathedral. The work of the Archbishop is performed by the coadjutor, the Right Rev. William Elder.

Conductors Conspiring to Rob a Railroad.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 1.—At a late hour last night Stanley Cunningham of this city and Joe Gavin of Mensha were arrested on warrants sworn out by D. Y. Abbott, trustee of the Wisconsin Central Railroad, on a charge of conspiracy to swindle the road. To-day it leaked out that five days ago eleven conductors on the road were discharged for stealing from the road. They had clubbed togethes with a number of station agents, and were returning tickets without being punched to the agent to be sold again, and dviding between themselves nearly all of the cash taken in lieu of tickets.

The conductors were also in cahoot with scalpers, and were selling them tickets that had been taken up but not punched. More arrests will follow, as the evidence of the thievery is very strong.

Rescued by his Daughter.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 3.—Information was received here to-day that Colonel C P. Romsdell, United States Marshal for this district was dangerously wounded by a bull yesterday, on his farm in Chesterfield county. He was engaged at the time in getting his cattle together, when the bull attacked him, and but for the timely interference of his daughter, who drove the animal off, he would have been killed. As it is, he is badly injured about the head, face, body and arms and suffers much pain internally. His injuries are considered quite serious.

The Boom in Rebel Bonds.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 28.—A remarkable demand for Confederate bonds continues, and the boom for these valueless promises to pay is unabated. A leading banking house has already purchased nearly five millions coupon bonds, at from $3 to $5 per thousand.

Terse Telegrams.

Rev. Dr. Edwin A. Dalrymple, rector of St. Stephens' P. E. church at Baltimore, died on Monday.

A severe shock of earthquake was experienced at Penniker and Hillsboro, N. H., on Monday morning.

J. W. Oliver, of Webster, Georgia, has been arrested at New York on a charge of extensive swindling in that State.

John Stephens, the head of one of the largest wholesale grocery houses of Detroit, died of paralysis on Monday, aged sixty-nine.

Mayer & Buchman's brewery, at Clifton, Staten Island, was destroyed by fire on Monday. The loss is estimated at $500,000.

The Methodist Ministers' Association of Montreal repudiate the views of Rev. Dr. Burns, as expressed in a letter to Dr. Thomas, of Chicago.

In Whitfield county, Georgia, Thomas York was killed by his father in the presence of the former's wife. They quarreled about crops. The father fled.

An execution has been issued against the Allentown, Pa., Rolling Mill Company for $1,343,586. The plantiff is Ario Pardee, of Ario Pardee and J. Gillingham Fell.

The cigarmakers of Milwaukee have determined to demand an advance on piece work of one dollar per one thousand cigars made. If the demand is refused about eight hundred men will strike.

Muncie Burns, a notorious burglar and well known in all large cities in the West and by wardens of four penitentiaries, where he has served as many terms, was shot Monday night in St. Louis by a policeman while attempting to rob the residence of Judge Seymour D. Thompson. The bullet served the femoral artery and it is believed will produce death.

Telegraphic Notes.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 31.—The Governor and Council to-day decided upon Thursday, November 24, as Thanksgiving Day in this State.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., October 31. Thomas Perater, an old and experienced miner, was killed this afternoon in the Moffit mines by a fall of top coal.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., October 31.—Michael Early was murdered at Wallington this evening about 8 o'clock, his head being crushed in with an axe, by unknown persons.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 31.—A steam boiler connected with a thrashing-machine exploded at Martville, N. Y., yesterday, killing Francis Mullman and injuring eight others.

ATLANTA, Ga., October 31.—Lang Armor, a negro, was sentenced today to be hanged at Crawfordsville, Ga., on November 25, for murder.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30—A number of the counsel engaged in the suit of the City against the Gas Trustees, was in the Court of Common Pleas, No. 1, this morning, where Judges Pierce and Biddle were holding court for the purpose of ascertaining what the decision of the court might be with regard to Judge Brewster's motion to quash the City's bill. The court, however, in view of the important questons raised was not prepared to render a decision and thought that the case should be heard by a full bench.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—There were no markets to-day. The Commercial Exchange was closed, the brokers being away on an excursion.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the Secretary of State by the New York Life, Accident and Health Association.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., October 31. Henry Litzner, employed at Jessie Starr's iron foundry, on the outskirts of the City of Camden, was crushed to death yesterday by a heavy piece of iron falling upon him. He leaves a wife and two children.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 31.—At Tarboro, yesterday, a man named Doulby, a Frenchman, committed suicide by taking laudanum. His diary is written in French, German and English. He wrote his will, loaded a pistol and took laudanum.

Local Small Talk.

—House-cleaning is almost over.

—Select your Thanksgiving turkey.

—Johnstown has one case of small-pox.

—Attend the church prayer meetings this evening.

—Why don't President Arthur issue his Thanksgiving proclamation?

—Mr. Charles Beardsley, of Lock Haven, has gone to Florida for his health.

—Rev. E. B. Morris, of the Baptist church, was married yesterday in Baltimore.

—The boardwalk leading from Linn street along the north side of Spring is now undergoing repair.

—The nights are bright. Throughout the long hours until morning fair Luna holds sway in the heavens.

—Mann & Son, proprietors of the Mill Hall axe works, will, on the first of December, advance the wages of their men 10 per cent.

—Three large water wheels are now being put in the mill of Duncan & Hale. W. H. Musser, of Milesburg, is superintending the operation.

—The shade trees on Spring and Bishop steeets, surrounding the residence of Mrs. Brockerhoff, were trimmed and otherwise improved in appearance yesterday.

—There was 'music in the air' in the vicinity of the school house yesterday morning. The children were singing "Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue," and seemed to keep good time.

—A rise of six inches occurred in the Susquehanna river at Lock Haven on Monday morning at 7 o'clock Square timber men are securing their rafts, and the loose Lock Haven logs are being secured.

—Mr. David Young, an aged and respected citizen of Boalsburg, died in that place on Sunday, the 30th of October. His death is much regretted. He leaves quite a large family. His age was about 69 years.

—A large and enthusiastic audience greeted Ralph Bingham Tuesday evening. The number of young folks in the audience, all eager to see Ralph, was unusully large. The young man's selections embraced both the serious and comic and exhibited remarkable oratorial powers.

—Mitchell Chatham, a professional piscatorial artist, of Lock Haven, went up the river on Saturday morning to troll for bass. His biggest catch was one that weighed 4½ pounds and measured 20 inches long and 13 in circumference.

—Nothing very startling has been discovered regarding the action of the boys on the night of All-Hallow-e'en. Their fun seemed to have been confined to the removal of steps and gates and placing dry goods boxes before office and store doors.

—A special examination of teachers for the Centre county schools will be held in this place on Saturday, November 12, at 9 o'clock a. m. All applicants must come with a legal request from the board employing them. Prof. D. M. Wolf will conduct the examination.

—There was quite a fine market yesterday morning. Butter and chickens were for sale in abundance. The price for the former article continues at 40 cents per pound, but the demand yesterday was not so great as it has been during the past two months and there is a prospect that it will soon be quoted at lower prices.

—The boardwalk leading from Mr. Gerbrick's residence in the direction of Coleville is in an exceedingly dangerous condition. It is now very dilapidated and rickety. Owing to its high elevation from the street, it is unsafe, even at best, and should be protected by a railing. At present it is merely a man-trap, and should receive immediate attention from the borough or township authorities, or whoever has control of the matter.

—The Cambria Iron Company's monthly pay to employes, the distribution of which was finished Saturday, will aggregate $103,000. Two weeks ago the men engaged in the Gautier department of the works were cashed off with a total of $36,000, and the Iowa barb wire workmen with $3,000. The Woodvale woolen mill employes drew in the aggregate last week some $5,000. The aggregate foots up $147,000.

—The constitutional croakers are again nonplused. One month ago they confidently predicted a great famine, much suffering and all the other evils which can follow in the wake of an unprecedented dronth. But the present favorable weather has changed the aspect of affair. The earth is soaked with frequent showers, grass is growing finely, and the new-sown seed is springing forth in a manner to betoken future harvests of grain. But then there is One who cares for even the sparrows.

Marksmanship.

The following general order, of interest to members of the National Guard, has just been received. They will perceive that it will be necessary for them to improve the time from now until November 23 in practicing marksmanship, and judging by their recent victory over Company H, of Johnstown, their report may be made as good as the best.

The order is "General Orders No. 17," dated at Harrisburg, October 27, 1881, and signed by Governor Hoyt and Adjutant General Latta:

The season for qualification in marksmanship will close November 23d. All reports must be forwarded by the Inspectors of Rifle Practice to Lieutenant Colonel George Sanderson, Division Inspector of Rifle Practice, on or before December 1st. The reports must contain full details of practice, with scores in full. If any organization qualify a less number of marksmen than last year, the surplus badges will be turned in at the same time the reports are forwarded and any lost badges must be fully accounted for.

Strict compliance with this order will do away with much of the trouble caused by the uncalled for delay of last year.

Important.

The attention of township authorities, collectors and county commissioners is called to an Act of Assembly passed during the last days of the session. The act can be found on page 45 of the general law of 1881. It makes tax assessed upon real estate a first lien upon which they are levied; provides for a lien docket to be kept in the Commissioners' office, which is to be a notice to the whole world, and in case a judicial sale takes place, the tax lien docket is to be satisfied before any money goes to the creditors. The commissioners will want a new set of books, as the act covers all township and borough as well as State and county taxes. Collectors should study the act carefully and not get caught by the penalties in section three.

Change of Location.

We understand that the location of the prospective nail factory has been changed for another a short distance further down the railroad than was originally intended. The location at first thought of was near the lime kiln, and the new site has been chosen to avoid the erection of a branch railroad of considerable length. The new location will be equally advantageous in all respects and the gentlemen who compose the company will be saved some unnecessary expense. The building will be erected immediately, and it is probable that a large number of dwelling houses, for employes will also be built.

A Handsome Buck

Hunters in this region seem to be meeting with considerable success. Yesterday a fine buck—a noble fellow of splendid proportions—was sent to this place from Snow Shoe. He was shot by Messrs. Alexander, Haupt, and others who are now in the woods in search of more game. The handsome fellow weighed about 180 pounds. He showed evidence that this was not the first time that the gun of the hunter had been aimed at him. In his right side were the marks of an old bullet wound. The wound which deprived him of life struck him directly in the heart.

Consider.

Would it not be well for every man to stop and think before he votes for Treasurer? Lay all party questions to one side and choose the best man to fill the office and take care of your money. I am very little interested in politics; in fact, so little that I have never voted. But I expect to vote this year, because, the Republican party has selected a man for treasurer and the man has not hunted the office. That is my idea of the kind of man we want, one who will serve for the good of the people and not for the money that is in it. ZION.

A Pleasant Party.

A very enjoyable party was given on Monday evening at the residence of Mr. William Humes, in Spring township. About twenty-five young ladies and gentlemen from Bellefonte rode to the scene of the evening's enjoyment in Mr. Abram Baum's hack and with Mr. Baum himself as driver. There were no creeks or dams of water on the way, and consequently the happy party met with no upsets or other unwelcome adventures. The programme of pleasure was of the usual character, and all returned well satisfied.

—The 8.50 express going east met with an accident on Tuesday night about one mile this side of Mill Hall. The rear car jumped the track, but was not damaged. None of the passengers were injured except one man who became frightened and leaped from the platform. His injuries, however, are not regarded as serious. The car was soon put on the track and the train proceeded with but little delay.

Dr. T. R. Hayes' Residence.

About all the inhabitants of our little borough are aware that the stately pile of brick and mortar, on the south side of Linn street above Allegheny, which has, during the past summer, been assuming the shape of an imposing dwelling house, is owned by Dr. Thomas R. Hayes. It is now the only house gracing the south side of Linn street above its intersection with Allegheny, and as real estate is now increasing in value and there is a promise that dwelling houses of all descriptions will soon be in great demand, we can safely predict that this is but the precursor of other and still finer dwellings to arise on that side of Bellefonte's aristocratic thoroughfare. He has set a good example in erecting a brick house directly in the face of so many frame dwellings. The residence will be completed in about three weeks.

The front of the house is of pressed brick. Broad steps ascend to the porch on the southwestern corner of the building. On the first floor is a beautiful parlor with a bay-window, a sitting room with a view both south and west and also a bay-window, a dining room and kitchen. There are convenient closets in both the sitting and dining rooms and abundance of light. From the dining room an easy flight of steps descend into a commodious cellar. The stairway leading to the second floor is ornamented by a solid walnut balustrade. On the second floor are four apartments, the one on the south side being particularly handsome and the view from it in two directions very grand and attractive. There is a fine bath room on this floor furnished with a bath tub, towel closet and conveniences for hot and cold water. The woodwork here also is of solid walnut. The third floor has three pretty apartments, suitable for any purpose.

Mr. W. L. Steele is the contractor for the woodwork and Mr. Morris Cowdrick for the brickwork. Both gentlemen have filled their contracts in a satisfactory and workmanlike manner.

Change of Schedule.

A change of schedule went into effect on Monday on the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad. It is true that the change in the time of the arrival and departure of trains is slight, but nevertheless it is sufficient to seriously inconvenience those to whom "time is money," and who do not desire either to miss the train or wait long for it.

Heretofore the morning express has departed from this place at 6:46. In the future the same train will depart ten minutes earlier, or at 6:36 o'clock. What is known as the 10:05 o'clock a. m. mail now leaves two minutes earlier, or at 10:03. No change has been made in the 5:35 o'clock p. m. mail. The 8:47 o'clock p. m. express now leaves three minutes later, or at 8:50.

Those who travel much should not forget these changes. If it had not been that the 6:36 o'clock express was fortunately behind time yesterday morning, at least two-thirds of those who departed on that train would have arrived too late.

—Our readers who have consulted the score made in the shooting contest which took place on Saturday afternoon between Company B and Company H, and which was published in the DAILY NEWS of Monday morning, have no doubt perceived that Corporal Powers made an exceptionally good record for himself in the trial at two hundred yards range, his score was the highest in Company B. When Corporal Powers took his position to shoot, the score of the two companies promised to be about even. If his score had been one short of the others this would have been the case, but he went two better than any of his brother members, thus giving the victory to Company B by a score of 62 to 59.

—D. H. Hastings, Esq., is now the occupant of one of the handsomest law offices in Bellefonte. He recently removed into the room opposite Wilson, McFarlane & Co's hardware store, formerly used as a law office by the Blanchard Brothers. He has furnished it in quite a superb style. The well-equipped library, neat tables and desks and tasteful carpets all suggest perfect order, refinement and beauty. The business location is also excellent, and we bespeak for our soldierly friend an increase of his already extensive practice.

—A prominent feature of the entertainment in aid of the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday night was the fine musical performances of Mr. Beck, Bellefonte's German tonsorial artist. He is himself an enthusiastic lover of music, and as such can always, produce the sweetest strains on any instrument.

—Workmen are busy on the interior of the Reformed church, and that fine edifice will be completed early in the spring

The Glass Works.

The manufacture of glass is now among the industries which are regarded as certain in the near future of Bellefonte. All the arrangements have been completed and the old works at this place will be immediately refitted with new machinery and put in working order. Already the scene about the building is one of activity. Men are engaged in clearing out the dirt and rubbish which has accumulated during the past few years and visitors from town are looking with pleasure at the unsightly black building, and indulging in encouraging remarks about its future.

The gentlemen who have become the proprietors of the works are Mr. Richard Davis, an Englishmen, who has been connected with glass works in Detroit and also in New Brunswick, and Mr. Raymond Reinle, a dealer in glass in the city of Baltmore.

Why should not glass be manufactured here at a profit? The more important materials for its manufacture are found in abundance, and all that is required is the energy, capital and pluck to utilize them.

This seems at last to have been found and we wish the new company success.

Legal Holidays.

It may be of service to know what the law is in Pennsylvania in regard to legal holidays. It reads as follows: "The following days, namely, the first of January, the twenty-second day of February, the fourth day of July, the twenty fifth day of December and any day appointed or recommended by the Governor of this State or the President of the United States as a day of fasting or for the general cessation of business, shall be regarded as a legal holiday, and shall for all purposes whatsoever, as regard the presenting for payment or acceptance, and of protesting and giving notice of the dishonor of bills of exchange, bank checks, drafts and promisory notes, made after the passage of this act, be treated and considered as is the first day of the week commonly called Sunday."

The Hunters.

It is said that Rev. George Fenypacker and Nimrod Wagner made a second expedition to the woods recently for wild turkeys. The tale of their mistakes and mishaps on this latter occasion has not yet reached the public, but it is certain that they each returned with a turkey as an evidence of their prowess. Perhaps they did not waste any amunition on the vacant air.

Apropos of hunters, it is certainly of interest to allude to the expedition to the woods recently of Messrs. Theodore Deschner, John L. Potter and Bond Vallentine. Each gentleman brought down his game, and the two last mentioned, from the fact that they make no pretensions to superior marksmanship, feel quite elated at their unexpected fortune.

There are other parties who have met with similiar success of whom we have heard no particulars

Commendable.

The members of the Y. M. C. A. who have been managing the business connected with the visit of Ralph Bingham to Bellefonte were agreeably surprised yesterday morning when they went to the Brockerhoff House to pay the boarding expenses of Ralph and his father. The Brockerhoff Brothers positively refused to take any recompense at all, and at the ordinary charge would have amounted to about $7 the generous action was fully appreciated by the gentleman who went to pay the bill. Actions of this character, performed in such a delicate manner, speak volumes of praise for the hotel and its gentlemanly proprietors.

—The Y. M. C. A., of this place, realized about $60 as the net proceeds of the entertainment given by Ralph Bingham on Tuesday evening. The young gentleman remained in town during Wednesday, visiting the public schools and other places of interest.

—The residence of Mrs. Judge Hale, on Allegheny street, is receiving a fresh application of paint and is otherwise materially improved in appearance.

—A good Baptist clergyman of Bergen, N. Y., a strong temperance man, suffered with kidney trouble, neuralgia and dizziness almost to blindness, over two years after he was told that Hop Bitters would cure him, because he was afraid of and prejudiced against "Bitters." Since his cure he says none need fear but trust in Hop Bitters.

Local Department.

—Put on your overcoat. The temperature is growing cold.

—November 24th will probably be selected as thanksgiving day in this State.

—Fresh paint is being applied to the exterior of Mr. Beck's barber shop.

—New tin spouting has been put on Gov. A. G. Curtin's handsome residence.

—A new boiler and engine is being put in at the ore banks of the Messrs. Valentine.

—No deer were brought in on the Snow Shoe train last night. Guess the hunters didn't have good luck.

—The first snow of the season fell on Friday. For a few minutes Mother Carey's chicken feathers flew fast and thick.

—A couple of men from the country endeavored to effect a horse trade Friday, but were not able to strike a satisfactory bargain.

—The Lutheran Conference, which has been in progress at Centre Hall for several days, terminated Thursday Its sessions were largely attended and quite interesting.

—High authorities endorse the Canfield and Lamont Humpty Dumpty troupe. They will give a fine street parade during the day which all should endeavor to see.

—We learn from a source that professes to be informed on the subject that Governor Curtin and family will occupy the residence of Mr. Coffey, of Washington, during the Governors Congressional term.

—The new boiler for the water works arrived Thursday afternoon It was ordered from a Williamport boiler firm through Gordon & Landis. It is an immense concern and looks as if it might last for centuries.

—A sweet little stranger—a boy—arrived at the residence of our friend, Dr. R. L. Dartt, last Saturday. He tips the scales at ten pounds. We congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Dartt on this acquisition to their family.

—A small lad named Schupp fell from a buggy which was being backed from the hitching post before Valentines' store, on Saturday morning, one of the wheels of the vehicle passing over his limbs. He was much frightened, but we believe his injuries were slight.

—The Philadelphia Press is publishing Garfield's sketches of Pennsylvania's illustrious men. The last was of Benjamin Harris Brewster, Esq., of Philadelphia, and the Press promises that the subject of the next shall be Hon. A. G. Curtin, Pennsylvania's War Governor.

—If "Philip Kent, Potters Mills. Centre county, Pa.," is expecting a letter and fails to receive it, he is informed that the reason for its non-appearance is because said letter now lies in the Bellefonte post-office and cannot proceed on its way for want of the necessary postage stamp.

—The ancient weather prophets, a century or more ago, always prepared for snow in accordance with the amount of dust that existed the preceding summer. If that rule holds good at this day of conglomerated ideas, look out for deep snows next winter; for we had an abundance of dust last summer.

—The Wednesday evening meeting at the African M. E. church, this week, was of an unusually interesting character. It happened that several clergymen from a distance were present, including Rev. Isaiah Welsh, Rev. Asbury, Elder Smith and others. These brethren each took an active part in the exercises, rendering them very edifying.

—Among the letters received in Bellefonte is one now in the post-office addressed to "Mr. F. P. Bell, Sluvia, Centre Co., Pa." It came from Williamsport, is addressed with lead pencil and is apparently all right except the name of the post-office. There is no post-office in this county or in any other with the outrageous name of Sluvia, and no one connected with the post-office in this place knows where to send the letter.

—Several of the teachers connected with the public schools have applied to the school board for clocks in their school rooms. Of all places in the United States, certainly a school room should be the first to be supplied with this convenience of modern civilization. It is all well enough as a philosophical experiment to teach scholars to measure time by the sun, but that luminary is not always visible, and even the most skillful cannot discover this as quickly as he can by glancing at the face of the clock.

They Drink, but Do Not Vote.

Ridiculous occurances often enliven the pathway of the average candidate for political honors. This campaign has not passed without its customary amount of humor; and the mistakes which the devout ardor of politicians often lead them to commit have never been more humorously exemplified than in an incident at the Brockerhoff House a few days ago. The chief character in the burlesque drama was a certain active, energetic politician, who never allows an opportunity to pass to make a vote, and whose excess of zeal led him into error on this occasion. The other actors were a half-dozen youths who had assembled in the county town from the surrounding country with no other ostensible purpose than to enjoy all the fun which came in their way. They had not long to wait before an opportunity was afforded them to perpetrate an immense joke and that too on the aforesaid candidate. A description of the young gentlemen is necessary to a correct appreciation of the incident.

More from habit than from a sensation of cold they gathered about the stove in the hotel office. Each was handsome and manly in appearance and the soft down which grew thick on each upper lip seemed to indicate that they had arrived at that stage of manhood when one and all could step proudly to the polls on election day and vote for the candidate of their choice. None would doubt that any member of the party had attained that age which, in the eyes of the law, elevates him from infancy to the dignity of true manhood.

The candidate approached with his affable smile and winning manner. The youths returned his advances with cordiality. Each was warmly shaken by the hand, good wishes were interchanged, and the great American test of "hail fellow well met"—an invitation to drink—was given by the candidate to his new friends. The young men understood the deception, and they all, for the sake of the joke, accepted the invitation with thanks. "Invite all your friends," gushingly said the candidate, and two or three bystanders were accordingly added to the number whom the candidate volunteered to treat. All the sparkling champagne which the young gentlemen considered it the part of discretion to imbibe, was taken, and with suppressed laughs they bade their political friend adieu; not, however, until he had solicited each for his support at the polls next Tuesday. And then the joke became known, none of these youths had yet reached the golden age of twenty-one years, and the candidate's spare money was wasted so far as his success for the present campaign is concerned. It is always proper for a political aspirant to labor zealously for himself, but when outlay of money is contemplated, it should be expended on those who have the power to aid, not on minors.

The Glass Works Again.

Mr. Reinle, of Baltimore, was in town on Saturday. He is one of the proprietors in the glass works, soon to be put in operation. He has had quite an extensive experience as a dealer in glass and will be able to dispose of to advantage all the glass that will be manufactured.

The repairs about the old glass works building are going rapidly forward. A new cupola has been erected and the furnaces are being put in proper condition. The day appointed for the first trial in blowing glass has been postponed until a later date than was originally intended, and will now probably be on Wednesday or Thursday of next week.

Sand will be brought from Huntingdon county. It is crushed rock, white as snow and clear as crystal, much superior to the sand in this county and obtainable at the same price. About twelve tons of bituminous coal will be used each day, which has been contracted for at reduced rates.

Boy Injured.

We regretted to learn Monday of a severe accident which occurred on Saturday to a 5-year-old son of Mr. Samuel Sheffer, who resides near Morris' lime kiln. While swinging he was thrown from his swing, breaking one of his hip joints. The accident is not only extremely unfortunate, but also of an unusual character, as it is not often that children meet with injury while playing with a contrivance so simple as a swing. The skillful care of Dr. T. R. Hayes, of this place, was called into requisition and at present the lad is doing as well as could be expected.

—A letter now lies in the Bellefonte post-office addressed to "Miss McRabb, care of McRabb & Rouleton, Bishop street, Londonderry, Ireland." It is not supplied with the necessary foreign postage, and anybody who knows anything about the letter will do well to call and see about it.

Truancy.

We suppose there is not a boy or girl attending the district schools of this borough who does not understand the meaning of the word "truancy." Webster says it is the "act of playing or state of being a truant," and the particular meaning which it takes in the minds of every scholar is confined to staying away from school. Now truancy, under any circumstance, is disgraceful and the best, brightest and most conscientious scholars will not be guilty of it. It interferes with the progress of the scholar who acts the truant, and in a measure obstructs the prosperity of the whole school. It certainly is very disagreable to the teacher. Besides, the boy or girl who acts the truant is almost sure to get into trouble of some kind, and thus cause sorrow at home and at school.

We believe that the schools of Bellefonte are well conducted and are in every way as prosperous as ever before, but we happen to know that there is altogether too much truancy among the scholars, especially the the boys. Many of the parents of those boys and especially the merchants of Bellefonte are directly responsible for this, and indeed even offer inducements to the boys to play truant. These merchants thoughtlessly offer to pay boys to carry bundles, employing them during school hours, and thus tempting them to neglect school duties for the sake of earning a little pocket money. We know this would not be the case if the merchants were aware of the wrong they are doing. They will greatly please both the parents and teachers of these children if they will discontinue this practice and offer inducements to the boys to attend school rather than to stay away.

Arrested for Fraud.

Two men employed on the log job of Mr. Charles Ardell at Driftwood were arrested and lodged in the Cameron county jail on Wednesday last for altering the face of and obtaining money on two checks given them by Mr. Ardell. One of them received a check for $19 and altered the figures to $91. We have not heard the extent of the other's fraudulent transactions. They acted in a blundering manner in leaving Driftwood, which led to their arrest. At the depot they purchased tickets for Baltimore. As soon as their crime had been discovered word was aton ce telegraphed to Lock Haven to arrest the men carrying tickets for Baltimore, as they were the only tickets sold from Driftwood to that city on Wednesday. If they had purchased tickets to Lock Haven, as many other passengers were doing, at least one means of identification would have been destroyed.

—The Centre Democrat, of Thursday, in alluding to the glass works soon to be resuscitated, contains the following additional information: "Mr. Davis says the works will be running and the first glass made on the evening of next Sunday a week. The furnaces at present in the works, Mr. Davis said, will be utilized and permitted to remain until July, when they will be replaced with new furnaces, including blowing furnaces, 'on the European plan.' The force of employes, will consist of ten blowers and ten gatherers, three flatteners, four helpers, five cutters and a number of laborers—in all about sixty persons. These men have been all elsewhere, and will arrive by the date of opening. Mr. Davis says of their character they are all sober, steady and intelligent men, and that each blower is capable of making ten boxes of glass per day; otherwise, he intimated, he would not have them at all."

—Through the fierce and unexpected bombardment which "Bob" Ingersoll received from Hon. Jeremiah Black, that infidel has been forced to declare his real belief on religious matters. He believes that the earth has always existed and there never was any necessity for a Creator. Then Ingersoll thinks that matter existed before mind—a more puerile belief than we thought him capable of. In this last letter Ingersoll has exposed the fallacy of his own philosophy. The infidel has evidently been forced into a corner.

—Argument court was held Monday night, the special business occupying the attention of the court being the suit of E. C. Humes against the Bird Coal and Iron Company. This cause has occupied the attention of the courts for so long a time that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary; it has been prominent on every trial list for years, and it is about time something was accomplished in reference to it.

—Mr. Enoch Emory on Wednesday entertained the following ministers of the A. M. E. church at the Bush House: Revs. Wm. H. Brown, of Williamsport; S. T. Jones, Washita, Pa.; Cornelius Asbury, of Pittsburg; John N. Palmer and Chas. Garner, Bellefonte.

Prof. Wolf's Residence Burned.

Thursday morning while Prof. D. M. Wolf, of Penn Hall, was in this place on business connected with the county schools of which he is superintendent, the sad news was received that his fine residence at Penn Hall, together with all the furniture it contained, was totally destroyed by fire. He of course immediately departed for the scene of the conflagration to learn the full extent of his loss.

The residence which the fire destroyed is said to have been quite handsome, and was finely furnished throughout. The house had a frontage of forty-six feet. An important part of the furniture destroyed was a valuable library which money cannot replace. Both the house and furniture were insured, but the inconvenience occasioned by such a catastrophe at this season of the year is very great, and we sympathize with the Professor in his misfortune.

Returned.

It was highly amusing to many persons to read in the Centre Democrat of Thursday concerning the two Milesburg boys—Lewis Bullock and Henry Fulton—who, that paper said, went to Colorado to seek their fortunes. We say it was amusing, because on Wednesday evening those boys returned to this place and are now safe at home with their Milesburg friends, having learned, we hope, that their best friends are those of their own household, and the best place on earth is home.

The boys had not progressed far on their journey when the one who carried the money—Lewis Bullock—had his pocket picked of its entire contents. This was so exceedingly disheartening that they determined to immediately return to their childhood's home. The sequel has already been told.

A Bellefonter's Good Fortune.

News of a pleasant character comes all the way from Kilbourn City, Wisconsin. Our readers will remember Rev. J. V. R. Hughes, at one time a resident of this place, but now of the city above named. We regretted to hear of his failing health, which compelled him to give up his ministerial profession, but we are glad to hear that he has been appointed post-master at Kilbourn City. The appointment is one worthily bestowed and we are sure Mr. Hughes will fill the office with credit to himself and to the entire satisfaction of the people of that section. We also trust that the change of duties will have a salutary effect on his health. Mr. Hughes is a brother of Rev. James Hughes, Principal of the School in the Mountains, this place.

Festival Supper.

During the past week we have not had much space to devote to a subject which should receive the earnest attention of all our people, especially those who are benevolently inclined. We refer to the festival supper to be given next Saturday by the ladies of the M. E. Church at Valentines' forge. It is the first appeal they have made to the public for aid this year, and they deserve all the help a generous people can give them. They say that it is almost impossible to pay the salary of their minister by their own unaided efforts and hence this movement to secure more funds. They are now selling tickets to the festival and we hope their receipts will be large.

Meteorological.

The following is an abstract of the meteorological record at the Pennsylvania State College, for the month of October:

Highest barometer, Oct. 11, 29:35.
Lowest barometer, Oct. 25, 28:45.
Average barometer, 28:98.
Highest temperature, Oct. 1, 87°.
Lowest temperature, Oct. 11, 28°.
Average temperature, 58°.
First frost of the season, October 5.

The month has been characterized by fine growing weather, and only five frosty nights.

Clear days, 11.
Stormy days, 6.
Rain fall for month, 3 93-100 inches.

—He was a small colored boy. He rode along leisurely on a horse, unincumbered with saddle or bridle. It was Sunday about half-past one o'clock. Some object frightened the vicious young horse, and turning with the swiftness of lightning he rushed along Allegheny street. The boy, oh, where was he? He transferred his seat from the back of the horse to the soft road below quicker than the action was ever accomplished before. The horse kept on his way, but was soon caught. The boy gathered himself up and gazed after the retreating equine. Fortunately he was not hurt, but he will henceforth believe that there are some horses even outside of circuses that play tricks on their riders.

—The moon is now waning, although she still gives much light at night. A large ring encircled her bright form on Sunday night—a precursor of the storm which appeared yesterday.

Personal Mention.

Ellis Orvis, Esq., is at present in town.

Judge Samuel Linn, of Williamsport, was in town Friday.

Mr. Francis Speer, of Pleasant Gap, will not teach school this winter.

Mr. Frank Keller, is spending a few days with his brother in this place.

Gen. Beaver spoke to an enthusiastic meeting at Butler, Pa., on Wednesday night.

Mr. John Moore has so for recovered from his recent illness as to be about again.

Mr. Thomas Nolan, of Washington, D. C., is at present in town. Of course, he will vote to-day.

Miss Kate Jackson returned home Thursday morning after an absence from town of several weeks.

Attorney Ray was again engaged Thursday afternoon surveying for the Nail Manufacturing Company.

Mr. Alva Grow, Lock Haven's popular editor, was in town Monday. He gave the DAILY NEWS a call.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Heinle, who are now boarding at the Brockerhoff House, expect soon to commence housekeeping.

Mr. Robert Doak, of the firm of Doak & Loneberger, painters, is at present quite ill with dropsy. We hope soon to learn of his recovery.

Miss Petriken has been so ill during the past week that her popular school for small girls and boys is closed until she shall recover sufficiently to give it her attention.

Mr. James Mitchell, of Spring street, who has suffered severely from rheumatism for a long time past, was so much better last week as to be able to walk without the aid of artificial support.

Mr. Edward Garman says he never enjoyed a trip more thoroughly than that from which he returned on Monday. He did not visit the South as he at first anticipated. Most of his time was spent in New York City.

We learn with regret that Mr. John Moore, the fine photographic artist and scientific investigator, is seriously ill. On Monday evening several physicians were called to his assistance. Yesterday he experienced some relief.

Mr. William Morgan, Jr., of Pittsburgh, has been visiting his relatives in this place for the past few days. Mr. Morgan is an energetic and intelligent young man and his relatives and friends were highly pleased to see him.

Mr. John Evans, of Altoona, who frequently visited Mr. John Harper of this place, was married on Wednesday to one of the young ladies of that city. Mr. Evans has numerous relatives and friends in Bellefonte who wish him much joy.

Mr. Charles Glenn, the popular photographer, has been suffering acutely from neuralgia for several weeks. Notwithstanding the professed skill of Bellefonte's numerous physicians, he can obtain no relief from this apparently simple disease.

We take pleasure in noting the presence in town of Rev. Isaiah Welsh (colored). He is a son of the late John Welsh, who was once a respected citizen of this borough. Rev. Isaiah Welsh is a graduate of Wilberforce College, and was sent to Pensacola, his present place of residence, as a missionary.

A. D. Ferree, Esq., of Millersburg Pa., is now visiting Mr. R. A. Magee, of this place. Mr. Ferree is general agent of the Farmers and Mechanics Fire Insurance Company and of the Brooklyn Life Insurance Company, He is a pleasant gentleman, well calculated to further the interests of the companies he represents.

—The people of Clearfield county have decided that there are not enough shade trees around the school houses in that county, and the Superintendent of public schools, M. L. McQuown, has set apart next Saturday, November 12, as "Arbor Day." On that day teachers, directors, pupils and parents are invited by him to meet at the school house in their respective districts to select and plant a sufficient number of shade trees, at the same time providing means for their protection. Teachers are also recommended to decorate their school rooms at the time above mentioned. The idea is new and novel, and might result in vast improvement in the appearance of school houses if tried in this county.

—There was a larger attendance at the Episcopal Sunday-school last Sabbath afternoon than has been known before for the past eight months.

—More rubber overcoats and hats were in use yesterday than for a long time before.

—The churches were all largely attended on Sunday.

Phenomenal Weather Predicted.

A correspondent of the New York Sun makes the following prediction. "The weather of November will be eventful and phenomenal. The first half of the month will give a continuous succession of storms. The most stormy days will be the 1st, 2d, 5th, 7th, 8th, 10th, 11th 12th, 16th, 19th, 21st and 24th. The month will open balmy but sirenlike. The oscillation in temperature will be short and marked, ending with Artic waves. Following the 12th, the snowfall will be general. After the 24th, there will be more quiet days. There will be gales of wind on the 1st, 7th, and 19th. Brilliant auroras will be visible where the sky is clear, and earthquakes will occur at unusual places. There will be volcanic activity near the 1st, 7th, 11th, 16th, 19th, and 21st, The earth's atmosphere will be subject to a trying ordeal, the result of distant disturbances in space in circular and vibratory forms, but there will be no widespread devastation. Damage will result principally from winds, floods, snows and tidal waves."

—A new danger is ahead for all who burn coal, and that includes everybody. The Philadelphia Record discovered that a minute bug, about the size of a pin head, is undermining and destroying all the deposits of coal; that this same bug is more destructive than a moth if it gets into clothing, and that if it attaches itself to the skin it will penetrate the flesh, cause a disease like white swelling, soften the bones and terminate in a horrible death. But the Record seems to destroy the truth of the story by saying that the presence of this bug is detected by the crackling noticed when coal is first thrown on the fire. So long as we can remember, this crackling has been noticed, and consequently this bug must have existed for a very long time, and we do not remember to have heard of many deaths similar to that described.

—A splendid entertainment will be given the people of this place this evening, when Canfield & Lamont's minstrel troupe will occupy the stage of the Opera House. That conservative paper, the Boston Herald, says of them: "The three Lamonts, the original and wonderful acrobats and gymnasts, in their surprising act parterre, held the assembly breathless with amazement, the little boy being the wonder of the evening."

—It will be remembered by all who witnessed the Hibernica entertainment on its last appearance in Bellefonte that it was one of the finest to which our people have ever been treated. The manager of the troupe informs us that there is a vast improvement in the personnel of the troupe and in the scenery which they carry. They will appear next Saturday night.

—The Pennsylvania State Grange will meet in the Court House, at Williamsport, on the 13th of December. Leonard Rhone, Master of the State Grange, was in that city on Friday perfecting arrangements for the event. At least three hundred members of the order from a distance are to be present.

—Monday's rain was just what was needed to fill up the cisterns. Many people in the country whose usual water supply has been lamentably short for a long time are grateful for the recent and abundant rains.

—The oyster supper for the benefit of the M. E. congregation at Valentine's forge will take place next Saturday. All should attend.

—There was a very small attendance at the meeting of the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday afternoon last.

—Plenty of rain this week.

DIED.

YOUNG—At Boalsburg, on the 30th ult., David Young, aged 69 years, one month and eleven days. He leaves many friends and relatives to mourn his loss.

Sweetly our father is sleeping,
Under the cypress tree;
Sadly though we are weeping,
Fondly we revere thee.
